

Signs Joint Treaty

President Ends Historic Summit

MOSCOW (AP) — President Nixon ended his summit conference in Moscow today and took off for Kiev after signing with Leonid I. Brezhnev a joint declaration of long-range principles by which the United States and the Soviet Union agreed to avoid military confrontations and envisioning total world disarmament.

The President's departure was delayed by mechanical failure in the Soviet Ilyushin 62 jet that was to take him, Mrs. Nixon and others in his party to Kiev. The difficulty was discovered after the President had boarded the aircraft but before takeoff. The presidential party then switched to another Soviet plane for the flight to Kiev.

The White House said the delay lasted 45 minutes. A U.S. spokesman said there had been an "engine problem" on the first aircraft.

Nixon concluded his seven days of summit talks at the Kremlin by inviting the three top Soviet leaders—Brezhnev, President Nikolai V. Podgorny and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin—to visit the United States "at a mutually convenient time."

Henry A. Kissinger, the President's assistant for national security affairs, said the return summit would not take place until after the U.S. elections in November.

The communique recited the opposing views of American and Soviet negotiators on Vietnam.

However, Kissinger said the war was the subject of "long, sometimes difficult and detailed discussions" which left in doubt the vital question of whether the two governments understand each other on the issue and will cooperate to seek peace.

As for the prospects, "only the future can say, and I wouldn't want to speculate," Kissinger said.

It presumably was significant that the Soviets, in reciting their attitude toward the war, made no mention of Nixon's May 8 act of mining North Vietnamese ports.

Neither was there mention of Soviet arms shipments to North Vietnam, which prompted the mining, and Soviet spokesman Leonid Zamyatin declared "our assistance will continue to be given" to the North Vietnamese.

Both Zamyatin and Ziegler said no secret agreements or arrangements concerning Vietnam were reached at the summit.

The communique also dealt with Middle East tensions 2nd said the United States and the Soviet Union "declare their readiness to play their part in bringing about a peaceful settlement."

Of the two summit documents, the statement of principles signed by Nixon and Brezhnev at a televised Kremlin ceremony was the more sweeping.

Kissinger cautioned, however, that it represented "an aspiration and attitude" and that either side can ignore it at will.

The presidential adviser added that Nixon assumes the Soviet leaders take the document seriously or they wouldn't have signed it.

In noting that each government has an out, Kissinger volunteered for the benefit of those back home who may take a dim view of the accord that Nixon has "not suddenly gone soft-minded."

The first basic principle affirmed by Nixon and Brezhnev is that the Soviet and U.S. governments "will proceed from the common determination that in the nuclear age there is no alternative to conducting their relations on the basis of peaceful coexistence."

Differences in ideology and social systems, the document said, "are not obstacles to the bilateral development of normal relations based on the principles of sovereignty, equality noninterference in internal affairs and mutual advantage."

The second principle declared that the two countries "attach major importance to preventing the development of situations capable of causing a dangerous exacerbation of their relations."

Nixon and Brezhnev agreed "they will do their utmost to avoid military confrontations and to prevent the outbreak of nuclear war."

Doubtless the most visionary basic principle set forth was the sixth, which said:

"The U.S.A. and the U.S.S.R. regard as the ultimate objective of their efforts the achievement of general and complete disarmament and the establishment of an effective system of international security in accordance with the purposes and principles of the United Nations."

With China obviously in mind, the statement said the development of closer relations between their countries "is not directed against third countries and their interests."

The two leaders declared:

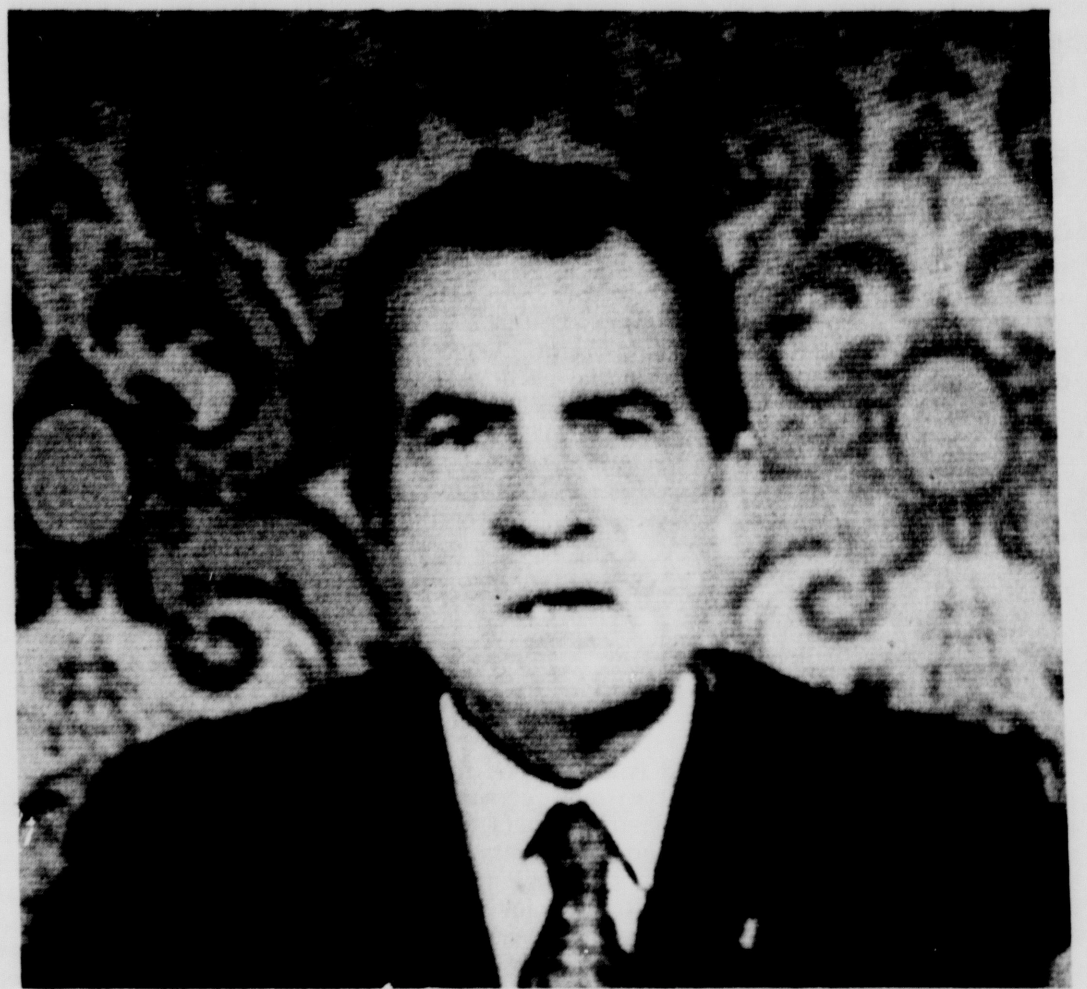

"The U.S.A. and the U.S.S.R. make no claim for themselves and would not recognize the claims of anyone else to any special rights or advantages in world affairs. They recognize the sovereign equality of all states." Kissinger said he found it "highly significant" that two governments holding "seemingly irreconcilable differences are making an effort" to insure the future peace of the world.

However, when asked if Nixon would have gone ahead with the mining of North Vietnamese ports had the principles been agreed upon two months ago, the presidential aide confessed he had a professional interest in ducking the query but declared: "No set of principles can be used like a cookbook."

Responding to questions from American newsmen, Kissinger denied that Nixon and the Russians failed to reach a longterm trade accord because of U.S. insistence that the issue be linked to a Vietnam settlement.

"We didn't come here to buy them," he

Exile To End For Duke

LONDON (AP) — The long exile of the Duke of Windsor ends Wednesday when his body is flown home for burial on the grounds of Windsor Castle.

The former King Edward VIII, who gave up the British throne on Dec. 11, 1936, to marry an American divorcee, died an hour before dawn Sunday at his home in Paris. He was 77, and his wife was at his side, holding his hand, after an all-night vigil.

The Windsors had no children.

The duke had been in failing health for months, and there were reports he had cancer of the throat. When his niece Queen Elizabeth II visited him at his home 10 days before he died, he was unable to rise from his chair.

The duke long ago arranged with his brother and successor, the late King George VI, that he would be buried at Frogmore, the effigy-encrusted mausoleum half a mile from Windsor Castle. Queen Victoria and her consort, Prince Albert, are buried there, and so is one of the duke's brothers, the Duke of Kent, who was killed in World War II.

Queen Elizabeth ordered a week of national mourning until June 5, the day of the funeral. She arranged for the body to be flown back to Britain in a Royal Air Force transport.

The duke will lie in state in St. George's Chapel, at Windsor Castle, on Friday and Saturday. Thousands are expected to file

Memorial Observance Nationwide

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Memorial Day, winding up a three-day bumper-to-bumper weekend with the nation's public tribute to the men who have fallen in battle from Bull Run to Khe Sanh.

Among the traditional ceremonies scheduled, was the laying of a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery. Rep. William Scott, R-Va., will represent President Nixon, who is winding up his Moscow summit meeting.

In San Francisco, the Coast Guard cutter Resolute will cast a wreath on the sea outside the Golden Gate.

A new memorial to the war dead will be dedicated in Coweta, Okla., the American city which claims to have lost the most men per capita in the Vietnam war.

The northeastern Oklahoma town of about 2,200 has recorded eight young men killed in the conflict.

In Frankfort, Ky., the Marine Corp League plans services at the gravesite of Lt. Presley N. O'Bannon, said to be the first Marine to raise the American flag on foreign soil.

A feature of the observance in Dallas is the lining of drives in two local cemeteries with hundreds of flags, each flown in memory of a serviceman or woman and given by their families.

Deaths on Highways Note Tragic Spiral

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Three persons were killed and 11 other persons were injured in a Memorial Day weekend mishap near Flagstaff, Ariz., as the holiday traffic death toll climbed near the 400 mark today.

Maxine Daymond Soto, 35, and two passengers in her car, Mary Soto, 17, and Santana Young, 6, all of Sacaton, Ariz., were killed Sunday when their car veered off U.S. 89 near Flagstaff, then skidded back onto the highway into the path of an oncoming car.

Three other persons in the Soto car were injured. Injured in the second vehicle were Dick Nelson, 42, Cudahay, Calif., and seven members of his family.

A grinding head-on collision near Gainesville, Fla., Sunday claimed the lives of three persons and left five others injured, two critically. All of the victims were from Williston, Fla.

The victims were identified as Alvin J. Burns, 80, driver of one car, and two young cousins, Cecil Ward Jr., 7, and 15-month-old Teresa Ward, passengers in a small foreign car carrying seven members of their families.

The Ward boy's parents were critically injured in the wreck which occurred during a heavy rainstorm. The infant girl's parents and 8-year-old brother were reported in fair condition.

Police said the Ward families were headed for a family gettogether when the accident occurred. Police said Burns' auto veered into the oncoming lane of traffic and hit the Ward car head-on.

In Rhome, Tex., a mother and her two children were killed Saturday when her car collided with a Fort Worth and Denver freight train.

Dead were Winona Varner Powell, 39, of Denton, Tex., and her daughters, Lizzie, 15, and Allie, 12. The accident occurred on a dirt road crossing with no signal light near U.S. 81-287.

Assault Charge

GREEN RIDGE — A Green Ridge man was arrested by the Pettis County Sheriff's office Friday night after he allegedly assaulted the city marshal of Green Ridge.

Sheriff Emmett Fairfax said Bob Ward, 43, was arrested on an assault charge. He was released Saturday on $2,000 bond and will be arraigned in Magistrate Court June 6.

Fairfax said Ward and two other persons, one a juvenile, were being arrested by Green Ridge City Marshall Chester Harbour on a charge of disorderly conduct when Ward allegedly hit Harbour. Harbour was not injured.

North Vietnam Ambush Deals Setback To South

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese forces lying in ambush south of An Loc today dealt a South Vietnamese relief column its second major setback in four days, killing or wounding 100 or more government soldiers with a heavy barrage.

Field reports said North Vietnamese gunners poured more than 1,000 rounds of rockets and artillery and mortar shells at South Vietnamese forces trying to move up Highway 13 north of Saigon.

The column was hit about 3½ miles south of An Loc.

Preliminary reports from the field said about 15 South Vietnamese were killed today and 80 or 90 wounded.

An Loc, 60 miles north of Saigon, has been under siege since April 7, a week after the North Vietnamese launched their offensive across South Vietnam. The relief column has been stalled for the past 10 days by North Vietnamese troops who are reported heavily entrenched on the western side of Highway 13.

In the central highlands, 50 U.S. B52 bombers dropped 1250 tons of bombs around Kontum in an attempt to keep the North Vietnamese from reinforcing their troops holding sections of the provincial capital for the fifth day.

Some of the strikes were within two miles of the city.

North Vietnamese gunners slammed 100 artillery shells into Kontum during the night after fighting all day Sunday in which the South Vietnamese command claimed 168 enemy troops were killed. Saigon said government forces recaptured an orphanage and a school in the southern part of town.

Field reports said 25 government troops were killed and 114 wounded in the fighting.

North Vietnamese troops were reported still entrenched in both the northern and southern sections of the city.

On the southern front, the South Vietnamese command rushed several battalions of rangers to reinforce the district town of Dat Do, 45 miles southeast of Saigon, where Viet Cong forces have gained a foothold and control some of the district.

The Saigon command claimed 75 of the enemy were killed, most of them by air and artillery strikes, in a battle a mile west of the district town. Two South Vietnamese were reported killed and seven wounded.

Field reports said much of Dat Do has been destroyed by air and artillery bombardment

HHH and McGovern In Sharp Exchange

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sharp exchanges between Sens. George McGovern and Hubert H. Humphrey marked their first joint television appearance of the presidential campaign. Both said they are eager for the two more meetings before the June 6 California primary.

Three issues—Vietnam, defense spending and welfare reform—dominated the hour-long program Sunday night as the two leading Democratic presidential contenders answered questions from three newsmen.

On the attack almost immediately, Humphrey assailed McGovern's claim that he was "right from the start" in opposing the Vietnam war, a criticism McGovern said he found "almost impossible to believe."

When the program, an expanded version of the Columbia Broadcasting System's "Face the Nation," was over, both Humphrey and McGovern appeared pleased with the result.

The two senators will appear Tuesday night on a special "Meet the Press" program over the National Broadcasting

Co. network and next Sunday on the American Broadcasting Co. program "Issues and Answers."

The most heated exchanges occurred on Vietnam and on the McGovern welfare program. The South Dakota senator rejected Humphrey's charge his plan would cost $72 billion but refused to put a price tag on his own proposal.

McGovern's plan involves giving every American a $1,000 "income supplement" and abolishing the present welfare program.

At one point, while the two senators sparred over the welfare issue, Humphrey charged that a single person in San Francisco earning $8,000 a year would have to pay $567 more in taxes under the McGovern proposal.

"That simply is not true," McGovern interrupted.

"Well, it is true," Humphrey replied, adding that a family of four making $12,000 would have to pay an extra $409 in taxes.

"And that is not true," McGovern

Odd Little Habits Bother This Bride

Dear Ann Landers: I have been married less than three months and I must know if my husband is crazy or if I am the one.

When he goes to bed at night he always lines his shoes up so the heels are together and toes point out to form a V. When he puts his leather belt through the loops on his trousers, he always misses one loop, the one over his left kidney. Before he tosses his socks in the hamper he ties them together. I've asked him a dozen times not to but he insists he does it "unconsciously."

I'm beginning to think something is mentally wrong with him. Can you explain these strange little habits? No amount of "reminding"—such as, "you skipped one of the belt loops, dear," makes any difference.

Thanks for your help, Ann. — Spooked In Spokane

Dear Spook: He is not trying to annoy you. These "strange little habits" are neurotic compulsions that have probably been with him for years. Be thankful his compulsions are harmless. Less fortunate women are married to compulsive drinkers, gamblers and skirt-chasers.

Dear Ann Landers: Yesterday I attended a tea. I loaded my plate with creamed chicken, shoestring potatoes and a piece of pecan pie. Later when I returned to the sweet table for a piece of lemon meringue tart, I caught a blistering glance from an overweight lady who was nibbling on a soda cracker. It looks could kill I'd have died right there.

What so many fat people don't understand is that they are better off than skinny people. I battle every day of my life to put on a few ounces. What a disappointment to step on the scale after stuffing myself all week and discover I've lost half a pound!

I walk around feeling overfed — painfully aware of my bony neck, angular arms and flat behind. How I envy the voluptuous, curvy women with round hips and provocative cleavage. They look healthy, fulfilled, well fed and well loved. Sign me — Skin And Bones

Dear Bones: Thanks for writing. I feel better already.

By JACK SCHICHT
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

Three-and-a-half months ago county court judges, county supervisors and commissioners throughout Missouri met in Jefferson City to solve the financial problems their county governments were facing.

The judges held discussions for two days and then agreed to change the set-up of their organization in two ways: they changed the name of their group from the Association of County Court Judges of Missouri to the Missouri Association of Counties, and they agreed to hire someone to voice their complaints and recommendations to the State Legislature in Jefferson City.

In short, the judges recognized the need for a stronger organization and a full-time lobbyist to represent them before the Legislature.

"Everybody had a lobbyist in Jefferson City but us," Pettis County Presiding Judge B. A. Fischer said. "The cities (represented by the Missouri Municipal League) have had lobbyists for a number of years, so we decided we would, too," he added.

not yet hired the director.

"I think the people of this county will see a noticeable change in their county administration," said Eastern District Judge E. L. "Red" Birdsong. "This organization is going to keep us on top of the legislature and save the taxpayers some money. It is going to increase our bargaining power tremendously."

Neither Judge Birdsong or Judge Fischer specifically would say how the new organization will bring increased revenue into the county, but Birdsong said the executive director of the organization should be able to advise individual counties on the possibility of obtaining either federal or state matching funds for county programs.

Would Fill Gap

Many times county court judges are not aware of all the options of obtaining matching federal or state funds, Birdsong added.

The biggest reason why the Missouri Association of Counties expects to be more influential than the old organization is because the new organization is backed financially. A recent ruling from the State Attorney General's office stated that county courts could use funds from individual county treasuries to finance such an organization.

Each of the participant county courts must pay yearly dues of $15 per $1 million assessed valuation. Pettis County's share is $1,155, based on a total assessed valuation of about $77 million. Judge Birdsong said there were no dues collected in the old Association of County Court Judges of Missouri, only a token $25 initiation fee.

The mandatory dues may explain the reason why not all the counties in the state are active members of the organization. Fischer said about 63 of Missouri's 114 counties have joined. He indicated, however, that about 80 per cent of the state's population is represented by these counties.

"I consider membership in this organization a very good investment," says Judge Fischer. "Just look at what the cities have done with an effective organization."

Membership Not Limited

Membership in the organization is not restricted to just county court members or their counterparts in some counties — the county commissioners and supervisors. Any person, firm or corporation that does business with the county may become an associate member by paying $125 a year. Associate members are not allowed to serve on committees, hold office or vote.

Some critics of the new organization charge that the associate membership system creates a situation in which individual firms could gain personally through the association. They theorize that county judges, who award contracts, might be tempted to look with more favor on association members than non-members.

This, however, was disputed in Pettis County.

"It has been my practice to buy the best equipment with the money available," says Judge Fischer. "The three county court judges inspect every piece of machinery we buy. I would not give preferential treatment to any business which might become an associate member of the organization."

Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Several Forms Of Lung Cancer

Dear Dr. Lamb — Would you please answer my questions on cancer of the lung? I am deeply concerned because my sister died at age 35 with it. She had missed a period and went to her doctor and he gave her a pill to get her period started and her periods did begin, but she had a backache and didn't feel well after that. This was about a month and a half before she died. If the pill was a hormone, could it have caused this cancerous growth in her lung? All at once she felt like she had the flu and a headache and a sore throat, fever and cough which lasted about two weeks and then she died. How long can a tumor be in the lung before it causes symptoms? Are there different types of cancer in the lung caused by different things? Is it hereditary? Is it contagious? Is cancer of the lung the most deadly cancer? Tell me what really causes cancer of the lung.

It is contagious; that is, spread from one person to another person by contact. If there is an element of contagious spread, it is not a simple mechanism, but related to a lot of other factors, including, perhaps, inherited predisposition.

It is really not possible to say specifically which cancer is the most dangerous. Some, for example the early ones on the skin, are relatively benign and, if removed early, can be completely cured. For most, it depends on how far advanced they are before they are treated. If the beginning of lung cancer is detected very early and is treated promptly, many individuals can be and have been cured.

Your sister probably had cancer before her examination. Not all doctors tell their patients they have cancer for fear it will be too much for the patient. The back pain was probably caused by the spread of the cancer to the spine, all of which suggests that the disease process had existed for longer than a month and a half.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Dear Reader — Since we really don't know what causes cancer, it is not possible to say what causes cancer of the lung. There are several different kinds of cancer of the lung. Some of these may be spread from a cancer that started somewhere else in the body. The most common types, seen in men particularly, is associated with smoking and many investigators feel that smoking cigarettes markedly increases the likelihood of cancer. There are some other types of cancer of the lung which begin in the lung, but they are quite rare.

For the most part, cancer is not considered to be inherited, but there is some evidence that a person can have an inherited predisposition to cancer. That is, one person exposed to whatever the factors are that cause cancer might not develop it, but another person who inherits a susceptibility when exposed to the same factors would. There is a lot of new genetic information coming out on cancer. One concept suggests that, at the time of birth, the hereditary characteristics which subsequently lead to cancer many years later are already present. If such a concept proved correct, it might be possible by studying the chromosomes of the cell to detect individuals who are most likely to develop cancer.

The question of whether cancer is contagious or not isn't 100 per cent settled, but in most types of cancer there is no evidence that can establish that it is contagious; that is, spread from one person to another person by contact. If there is an element of contagious spread, it is not a simple mechanism, but related to a lot of other factors, including, perhaps, inherited predisposition.

It is really not possible to say specifically which cancer is the most dangerous. Some, for example the early ones on the skin, are relatively benign and, if removed early, can be completely cured. Stop shaking your head, Ann. The rocks are falling out. — Grieved In Scranton

Dear Grieved: Better rocks than nothing — which seems to be your problem. Waitresses work hard — very hard — and the hours are often grueling. But if I had no special skills and wanted to make as much money as possible, I'd be a waitress. Granted, the salary isn't great, but an energetic waitress who is competent, cheerful, and gives first-class service — even when people come in at closing time, will clean up in tips. WHAT THIS COUNTRY NEEDS IS A STRONGER TRANSPORTATION SYSTEM.

Our trains, trucks and regulated water carriers make up the world's finest transportation system. But they need legislative action that will benefit not just the carriers of freight, but their customers and the public as well.

The proposed Surface Transportation Act will do just that. It will better insure the financial health of all forms of surface movers of freight, will place them in position to make necessary expansion and improvements to carry the freight load of the future, economically and efficiently.

The issue is before Congress now. And there's a lot at stake.

Sweet Springs Club
First Place Winner

SWEET SPRINGS — The Fortnightly Club MFWC of Sweet Springs has received awards in the General Federation of Women's Clubs and Sears-Roebuck Foundation 1970-1972 Community Improvement Program.

The club project, selected a first place winner in Missouri in the non-metropolitan category, will be sent to MFWC headquarters for judging in national competition in June at GFWC 81st annual convention at Washington D.C.

The award was presented to the Fortnightly Club during the state convention at Joplin, May 15 through 18. A check for $300, which must be used for further community improvement projects or promoting the program already reported upon, was received.

The community improvement project reported on was the local Community Clothes Closet, which grew out of discussion at a club meeting in January 1970, about "why people are helped at Christmas time and then forgotten the rest of the year." The Community Clothes Closet was discussed and committee appointed to contact other organizations and the County Welfare office for ideas and support. In February, the club voted to sponsor this project.

Twenty-four clubs and churches were contacted and plans were completed to open a Community Clothes Closet which after two years continues to furnish clothing, household items and some furniture to people needing help.

The facility is located in the former Sweet Springs hatchery building on Lexington street in Sweet Springs, and is open Tuesday afternoons. Financial support has come from several organization projects, from bazaars and rummage sales. Merchants give a discount to items that must be purchased new and some persons pay what they are financially able to pay for their garments.

Here's Easy Way
To Fasten Bras

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — Mrs. O. J. S. was complaining about her difficulty in getting on a back-hook bra due to arthritis. I hope she will be as happy knowing the easy-on way to fasten one as I was.

Put the bra around your waist like a belt, with the hooks in front and fasten them. Slide the bra around until the hooks are in the back and then pull the bra up and adjust cups, put your arms through the straps and, last of all, put the straps in place.

Easy-off drops the straps off the shoulders, arms are slipped out of straps and the bra is pulled around until the hooks are in front to easily unfasten. I have been doing this for years but will confess I learned it from my daughter when she first began to wear bras. Keep up the good work. — BLANCHE

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — How can I get electricity's tape off my windows? I pull the tape off but the sticky stuff that remains seems there to stay. I have tried lighter fluid and paint remover but it will not budge. — Mrs. E. H. M.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve has to do with children's shoe laces. Their white shoes need polishing every day to look nice and I wash the shoestrings by hand but after the first week of washing the plastic ends come off. I have heard of using glue on them but that is so temporary. I have bought shoes with metal or very hard crimped plastic ends that eliminated the problem so well that the strings wore out before the ends but I cannot find such laces for sale anywhere. I have even asked at the shoe store about getting such laces but no answer. If anyone has a solution for this I would like to hear about it. — SHERRY

DEAR POLLY — When I need a pressing cloth while ironing I use my dampened handkerchiefs for such a cloth. Place handkerchief over article, iron until hanky is dry, fold and put aside and then use another. Handkerchiefs and whatever you are pressing both get ironed at the same time. — JOAN

DEAR POLLY — My sister had a stroke which left her with a useless left hand and arm. She enjoys reading the newspaper but could not handle it until I tore the large sheets down the middle so she could pick them up one at a time and then turn over without any effort. This has worked so well. It keeps her mind occupied and she is up on the news and really interested in things. — ANNE

SS Sorority Works
For Bond Election

SWEET SPRINGS — Mu Omega chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Gene Heaper with Mrs. Kenneth Hollingsworth co-hostess.

Mrs. Don Johnson, president, conducted the business session where members voted to donate $25 toward the publicity fund for the swimming pool bond election. Beta Sigma Phi members will be calling community families to inform them about the swimming pool bond issues and urge everyone to vote yes, it was reported.

The service committee reported storage canisters had been made from old crocks, by painting and decorating them. These were given to the Day Care Center at Sweet Springs.

Plans for the summer socials and next year's schedule were completed. A cultural program on "The Art of Living" was presented by Mrs. Andy Moore and Mrs. Hollingsworth.

Kennedy Visits Wallace

SILVER SPRING, Md. (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, the brother of two assassinated politicians, visited Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace this Memorial Day and assured him that he had a chance to walk again.

The Massachusetts Democrat recalled that he himself was injured seriously in an airplane crash during his 1964 campaign for the Senate. Kennedy said he was told he could never walk again. He was hospitalized seven months.

"I was tremendously impressed by the governor's spirit and determination to overcome his physical hardships he endured and I'm sure he will," Kennedy told reporters outside Holy Cross Hospital.

Kennedy was in the hospital for 48 minutes.

Wallace "seemed in good spirits," Kennedy said.

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, who earlier this year called Wallace a demagogue, visited him Sunday and said he was "a man of courage who speaks for millions of Americans."

Wallace, felled by an attempted assassin's bullet May 15, sat in a wheelchair for the first time since the shooting. He later paid a surprise visit to his wife's room, some 75 feet from the intensive-care unit which he had not left since being placed there following emergency surgery the day of the shooting.

Muskie spent about 15 minutes with Wallace at Holy Cross Hospital, and told reporters waiting outside the hospital the two talked mostly about politics.

"He seemed in good spirits," Muskie said. "He was glad to see us and we were glad to see him."

Following Wallace's easy victory in the Florida primary, Muskie bitterly denounced the Alabama governor. The Maine senator described Wallace as "a demagogue of the worst possible kind ... I hate what he stands for."

The hospital's daily medical bulletin said there has been no neurologic change in Wallace's legs, paralyzed when he was shot at a political rally in nearby Laurel.

President said.

On Vietnam, the joint communique said Nixon "emphasized the need to bring an end to the military conflict as soon as possible" and stated anew that "the political future of South Vietnam should be left for the South Vietnamese people to decide themselves, free from outside interference."

Nixon also called for "negotiations leading to the return of all Americans held captive in the region, the implementation of an internationally supervised Indochina-wide cease-fire and the subsequent withdrawal of all American forces stationed in South Vietnam within four months, leaving the political questions to be resolved by the Indochinese people themselves."

The Soviet Union, said the communique, "stressed its solidarity with the just struggle of the people of Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia for their freedom, independence and social progress."

The Soviets expressed support for the peace proposals of North Vietnam and the Viet Cong and called for an end to American bombing of the North and "for a complete and unequivocal withdrawal of the troops of the U.S.A. and its allies from South Vietnam, so that the peoples of Indochina would have the possibility to determine for themselves their fate without any outside interference."

In the statement of principles, Nixon and Brezhnev said they "recognize that efforts to obtain unilateral advantage at the expense of the other, directly or indirectly, are inconsistent" with their objective of a peaceful world.

The statement continued: "The prerequisites for maintaining and strengthening peaceful relations between the U.S.A. and the U.S.S.R. are the recognition of the security interests of the parties based on the principle of equality and the renunciation of the use or threat of force."

In a gesture likely to be welcomed by Democratic senators who have argued that Nixon and former President Lyndon B. Johnson conducted foreign policy without adequately consulting the Senate, the statement said:

"The two governments welcome and will facilitate an increase in productive contacts between representatives of the legislative bodies of the two countries."

The document said the summit negotiators "decided to complete in the near future the work necessary to conclude a trade agreement."

An American flag emblem in his lapel, Nixon made a live television address broadcast both in the Soviet Union and the United States Sunday as he and Soviet leaders were within hours of winding up their historic meeting.

Since he is the first American president to visit Moscow, he was also the first to address the Soviet people by television from their capital. However, Nixon made a similar telecast in 1959 when he visited Moscow as vice president.

Marriages Business At Little Lake

ENUMCLAW, Wash. (AP) — If you're tired of traditional weddings, then drive past the city dump, the pickle factory, Pete's swimming pool and then up a dirt road and straight into the forest to a secluded wedding haven called Little Lake Ranch.

In clear twilight, Mt. Rainier, snowcapped and ponderous, broods over the scene.

There will be lots of witnesses handy—peacocks spreading their glorious tails in search of pea hens, swans craning their necks as they bob up and down on a sylvan lake and chattering geese and ducks.

A woman who "just liked seeing people get married" has turned her 160-acre ranch into a wilderness wedding site.

Vera Dyar came here from British Columbia with her husband 20 years ago. They built up their ranch and enlarged a pond into a lake.

After the death of her husband, things got too quiet for Mrs. Dyar, better known as Lady Vera, so she let friends hold their weddings outdoors and use a two-room guest house for their honeymoons.

A few years ago she turned her hobby into a business, advertising the Little Lake Ranch as a marriage site.

The couples bring their own minister. Recently, Lady Vera invited newsmen to attend one of the weddings of a young couple.

The ceremony was complete with electric organ. The audience included the ranch animals—ducks, swans, peacocks, cattle and geese.

Lady Vera, in a shining salmon-colored gown, seemed to have more fun than anybody.

"I'm not really Lady Vera or Lady Dyar," she said. "I'm not a lady, just Mrs., but people have always called me Lady and I'm used to it. But isn't this marvelous?"

The charge is about $60 for a small wedding party and goes higher depending on the type of ceremony, Lady Vera said.

One thing Lady Vera doesn't guarantee in the price of admission—the success of the marriage.

"That's outside my department," she said.

Cyclist Injured In Minor Mishap

A Kansas City man was injured, but not seriously, in a car-motorcycle accident at 1:57 p.m. Sunday.

Police said a motorcycle driven by Cecil H. Pohlman, 21, Kansas City, collided with a car driven by Carolyn M. Dunn, 21, Tipton, on South Limit near 14th.

Police said Pohlman suffered only slight injuries and was not taken to the hospital. Pohlman was issued a summons by police for improper control.

declared.

"Now for the senator to say it's not true—he doesn't even know what the price tag of his bill is," Humphrey said.

The Minnesota senator said his alternative to McGovern's proposal is to give a family of four a $3,000 annual income, raise Social Security benefits 25 per cent, transfer programs aiding the aged, blind and handicapped to federal financing and, over four years, transfer the whole family assistance program to federal financing.

That would cost $11.5 billion "as compared with whatever figure Sen. McGovern wants to put on his elusive program," Humphrey said.

Early in the program, attacking McGovern's "right from the start" theme, Humphrey said, "There are many times where you will find it not right from the start but wrong from the start." He insisted their records were parallel and that both were wrong at the start.

On defense spending, Humphrey charged that McGovern's plan for a $32 billion reduction to $54.8 billion would be "cutting into the very security of this country."

McGovern contended his proposal "will give this country all the military power we need" and would leave the United States, with enough power to destroy every Soviet city 20 times. "I think that's just about enough," he said.

There were these other issues:

Israel — Humphrey charged McGovern had been wrong on Israel and that his defense cuts would leave that country unprotected. McGovern denied it and said their positions were about the same.

Busing — Humphrey said he opposed it for the sole purpose of achieving an arbitrary racial balance but favored it to help provide better education. McGovern charged that Humphrey praised President Nixon's call for a moratorium on busing orders and said he has been "consistent in my support of the Supreme Court" on busing.

Taxation — McGovern said he wants to shift more of the burden from the average man to the rich and powerful, while Humphrey declared, "I was in the tax—loophole closing business before Gov. (George) Wallace and George McGovern

Six Killed In Blast At Belfast

BELFAST (AP) — An IRA bomb exploded accidentally in a Roman Catholic district of Belfast Sunday, killing six persons and wounding 18.

The casualty toll was expected to increase Catholic pressure on the Irish Republican Army to halt its campaign of violence in Northern Ireland.

The bomb blast killed three IRA men, all on the army's wanted list. They included Edward McDonald, a 27-year-old bomb expert, and Martin England, a company commander of the IRA's Provisional wing.

The army said the 100-pound bomb exploded as the IRA squad was carrying it to a car. It splattered pieces of bodies across the street and demolished several houses, burying sleeping families under the rubble.

Four other big bombs exploded in other sectors of Belfast Sunday. Three of them, estimated by the army to total more than 150 pounds of gelignite, wrecked large shopping areas in the downtown area.

Other bombs blew up a garage in a village 40 miles north of Belfast and severely damaged the town hall at Kilrea, 30 miles east of Londonderry.

A man was killed on the fringe of a Protestant area of Belfast Sunday night. He was shot in the head by gunmen firing from a fast-moving car which sped off toward the nearby Catholic stronghold of Ballymurphy.

The weekend killings brought the province's death toll in nearly three years of violence to 345.

past to pay their last respects.

The duke, sensitive to royal protocol and the scandal his marriage caused in his homeland, asked for a private funeral.

The duchess, now 75, will accompany the duke's body on its last journey home. The Queen, in a final gesture of reconciliation, invited the duchess to stay at Buckingham Palace for the first time.

These arrangements were not enough for some Britons who felt the former king should be honored by lying in state in Westminster Hall, where England's monarchs are traditionally laid out for public mourning.

Windsor had become a favorite of the American public as the affable, hard-hitting, pleasure-loving Prince of Wales and globe-trotting salesman of the British Empire. His abdication for the love of a divorced American woman enhanced his hold on the American public, and to the end they remained the most sought after guests by American hostesses.

As Edward VIII, he succeeded his father on Jan. 21, 1936, reigned for 327 days and was never crowned. His abdication was unprecedented in the 1,000-year-old history of the British monarchy.

The king's choice was Mrs. Wallis Warfield Spencer Simpson, wife of a London shipbroker. She was considered unsuitable to share the throne because she was a commoner and a divorcee.

The king abdicated on Dec. 11, 1936, after a farewell broadcast in which he said he could not go on without "the woman I love." Romantics around the world were in tears. Others thought he had failed to live up to his royal obligations.

He became the Duke of Windsor, while his brother the Duke of York became King George VI. Five months later, on June 3, 1937, Windsor and Mrs. Simpson were married in France. From that day, they were rarely separated.

Two Are Injured In Highway Crash

SWEET SPRINGS — Two young women from Warrensburg were treated and released at Sweet Springs Community Hospital here after suffering minor injuries in a car-truck collision at 7 p.m. Sunday at old Highway 40-Highway 127 intersection.

Linda C. O'Dell, 17, and Lucy Potter, were both hurt when the 1966 Ford, driven by Miss O'Dell north of 127, was in collision with a 1963 truck driven east on Highway 40 by Donald E. Cooper, 1715 West Fourth.

The O'Dell car was extensively damaged and was towed from the scene. Damages were minor to the Cooper truck, which left the incident under its own power. No one in the truck was injured.

The Highway Patrol reported the accident apparently occurred as the Cooper truck came to a stop at Highway 127, then pulled into the path of the O'Dell car.

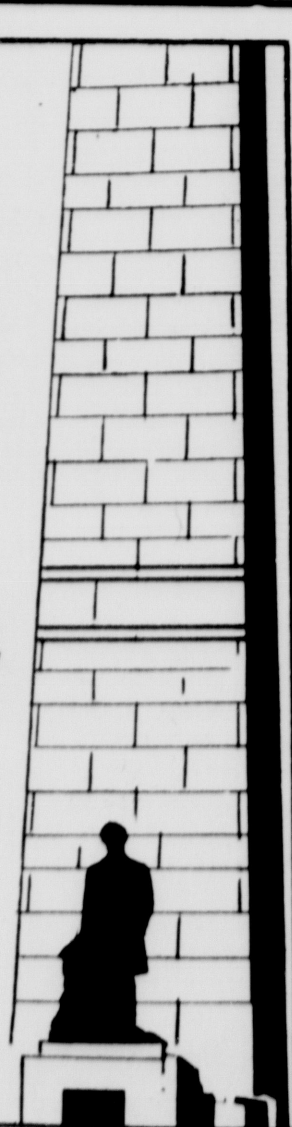

Damage Is Slight From Two Blazes

Sedalia firemen responded to two calls Sunday involving electrical failures. In both cases damage was slight.

They were summoned to Dick's Tally Ho liquor store, 3126 East 12th, at 9:39 p.m. to extinguish a short circuit in the wiring. The Missouri Public Service Co. was notified and the power was disconnected.

At 12:44 p.m. a battery cable shorted in a car owned by Anita Grinstead. Firemen unhooked the cable. Damage was estimated at $50.

Candidates Exchange Remarks on Television

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Noon Saturday, 27 hours before the nationally televised interview with Sens. George McGovern and Hubert Humphrey.

Studio 31 at CBS Television City, where "All in the Family" and "The Sonny & Cher Comedy Hour" originate, swarmed with technicians hanging lights and positioning cameras.

The desks where the candidates and three reporters would face each other were bathed in lights like a prizefight ring.

The Sunday interview on "Face the Nation" would be the first of three face-to-face confrontations on national television between the two leading contenders in the California Democratic presidential primary.

At 12:05 p.m. Joe Floyd, McGovern's television adviser, walked onto the set with coproducer Sylvia Westerman. Floyd is president of Midcontinent Broadcasting Co. and an old friend of McGovern in South Dakota.

Director Bob Vitarelli told

Floyd, "With that blue background Sen. McGovern should wear a suit that won't blend in. He should wear a tie that doesn't have a pattern—a herringbone or a tight weave."

"I'll bring along an extra tie just in case," Floyd said. He added, "One thing about lighting McGovern. He has very tight lines here." Floyd stroked the area beneath his mouth. "If you could get the lights down a little. The lower the better."

Vitarelli said, "Humphrey has the same problem. We'll make 'em low."

Later, D. J. Leary, Humphrey campaign national media director, said "The senator (Humphrey) has lost weight and has little hollow spots in his cheek and can look bad on camera. So if I put a little soft fill light from below it fills it up."

The three newsmen for the televised interview were George Herman and David Schoumacker of CBS and David S. Broder of the Washington Post.

Opening the show, Humphrey attacked McGovern's record on Vietnam, saying McGovern had not always opposed the war. He said, "I don't think he should have that slogan, 'Right from the start.'" McGovern looked at him intently and raised a hand in protest.

As the two continued to debate their stands on Vietnam, stage manager Jim Rice held up a sign for Herman: "Move on." Herman responded, "I wonder if we could move on." Humphrey renewed his debate and McGovern raised a finger and tried to interrupt.

When Humphrey attacked McGovern's welfare proposals, McGovern shook his head in disagreement. Humphrey often stared straight ahead with his hands clasped when McGovern spoke, but during key points of disagreement he turned to face him.

Afterward, Humphrey was asked who had won. "You're asking the combatants," he said, smiling. "I think we both looked like we're standing up."

Docking Memorial Tribute

ABILENE, Kan. (AP) — Kansas Gov. Robert Docking said here today that Memorial Day "can and should be a time of great pride in our heritage and of great optimism for our future."

The governor's remarks were prepared for a Memorial Day service at the Eisenhower Center.

"There are few holidays in a year's time which give each American time to pause and reflect in quite the same way as on Memorial Day," said Docking. "We are drawn into a somber reflection because this day is meant to remember those who died in somber and trying times."

Docking said he views this day as a day for "unexampled opportunity for citizenship — a time for an examination of conscience."

"Perhaps," the governor said, "It is a time that each of us ask honestly: 'what have I done to prevent a repetition of some mistakes of years past? What have I done to make this world a better place?'"

Continued Docking: "Patriotism is not a short and frenzied outburst of emotion, but the tranquil and steady dedication of a lifetime."

"Those whom we remember here today proved they possessed this kind of dedication. Where are men like those today? They are here at this observance, and your boys are in Vietnam because that is the kind of men and women you are and that is the kind of men you raise."

LLOYD LEWELLEN
Area Farm Management Specialist

The Arkansas Agricultural Experiment Station has developed a new pasture-type variety of alfalfa. This variety is named Victoria and was officially released in 1970. Some of its characteristics are: More winter hardy than Buffalo, has wide low crowns with a semi-trailing or vining growth habit. In spaced plantings, between 30 to 50 per cent of the plants have the ability to spread by means of creeping roots or rhizomes. The creeping habit seldom occurs in the dense heavy stands of alfalfa, but when the stand thins down then the creeping tendency becomes apparent.

Planting Intentions

I am sure farmers are changing their planting intentions this year as they compare soybeans and corn. Last year corn went in early and more was planted than many expected. This year for many the exact opposite is the case.

This might indicate the use of some type of Futures Marketing on some part of the crop you expect to grow this year. I could visualize a situation where about one-half of the beans you expect to raise "locked in" at around $3 per bushel might look pretty good at harvest time.

A close watch of the Futures Market during the next month or two will give a good indication of what many are thinking about soybean prices in September and later months.

Hard Hats

Protective head gear like the hard hat has saved many workers in construction work and industry from head injuries.

Farmers too, are subject to many head injuries and should wear protective head gear when exposed to these hazards.

Certain types of especially hazardous farm jobs have been listed by the National Safety Council where hard hats should be worn. These include building construction or demolition, repairing machinery and vehicles, operating machinery under trees or places of low head clearance, blasting, felling or trimming trees, and electrical work.

The Class A helmet is the one most suited for all around agricultural work. It has good impact resistance, and it also provides some resistance to electricity, water and burning.

A suitable hard hat will cost $5.

Energy Consumption

Electric energy production doubled from 1950 to 1960 and doubled again from 1960 to 1970. This is 5 per cent of the total energy produced in the United States. Petroleum and natural gas comprise 76 per cent of the mineral resources consumed for all energy uses. Coal, however, still provides half of all power sources for electric utilities. Measured in coal equivalent, the U.S. consumption of energy of 2 1/4 billion short tons in 1968 was twice that of the USSR, the next highest in the world.

What We Eat

Foods are often related to feelings and emotions. Foods may have symbolic meaning or may be associated with reward or status.

Milk, our first food, is symbolic of security and comfort. When people are put under physical or mental stress, their consumption of milk and milk products increases. From the opposite point of view, we sometimes see that teenagers and adults reject milk to show independence and to attempt to reject childhood associations.

Some foods are associated with reward. We reward ourselves with dessert after we have eaten the things that are "good for us." Sometimes people use these "reward" foods when they are sorry for themselves or feel lonely and rejected. When the reward system is used extensively, overweight and poor nutrition are usually the result.

Certain foods are associated with status. Meats, such as steak or lobster, may be related to affluence and prestige. Hot dogs and peanut butter are often thought of as children's foods. Buying of fresh fluid milk in some families entering the Food Stamp Program is interpreted as more than simple preference of these people for fluid over nonfat dry milk. Families who formerly were limited to nonfat dry milk provided in donated foods appear to be demonstrating a status satisfaction by buying fresh milk for part of their milk supply.

Locust Invasion

Adults of brood XIX of the 13-year cicada are starting to emerge in the eastern and southern portion of the state. These are black bodied, red-eyed, orange-tinted winged insects which will be around in the trees and shrubs for the next few weeks.

The females will deposit their eggs in the twigs and small limbs of trees. These damaged limbs frequently break off but may merely die on the tree during the summer. It may be necessary to control these pests on fruit trees and some ornamentals.

The adults can be killed with a spray containing carbaryl.

Bagworms

Overwintering bagworm eggs are starting to hatch. So far only a small portion of the eggs have hatched. A spray containing carbaryl, diazinon, toxaphene or malathion will aid in the control of this pest. One application applied after all eggs have hatched and while the larvae are still small will usually suffice.

Mosquitoes

Small water areas, such as jar, tin cans, old car bodies, old tires, and small holes are ideal mosquito breeding sites. Get rid of, drain, or spray with oil, all such breeding sites. Be sure that roof gutters and storm sewers drain well and do not hold water for long periods of time after rain. Be sure that screens on doors and windows are in good repair.

New Service

A new service, called computerized dairy nutrition service, is now available to Missouri dairymen. Use of the service has resulted in significant increases in production and quite often feed cost savings for some of the herds we have been working with.

fever, downer cows, and other problems related to nutrition, remarkable progress has been made in correcting the situations.

The service balances a milking ration with the dairyman's forage for protein, energy, calcium, and phosphorus. It provides information for ingredient buying as prices of ingredients change.

Cost of the service is $20 per nutritional program. A dairyman normally changes his feeding program three or four times a year.

Alfalfa Weevil

After the first cutting of alfalfa you can usually find larvae from the late hatching of overwintering eggs of the alfalfa weevil. The adult worm or weevil will not measure over three-eighths in length. He will be yellowish green in color with a small pinpoint black head. These remaining larvae newly hatched alfalfa weevils will continue to feed upon the stubble and new shoots. If there are many alfalfa weevil on the ground after the alfalfa hay has been harvested you will need to treat with a spray of 20 gallons of water per acre that was recommended earlier. Two chemicals that are available are alfa-tox or Imidan. If you need more information call the Extension office for the Guide Sheet Controlling the Alfalfa Weevil in 1972.

Some calls have arrived in the office of cut worms or army worms in alfalfa stubble. These worms are much larger and may not cause you any difficulty as soon as the overgrowth has been baled and removed. Remember it is the worms over three-eighths to one-half inch in length that are not an alfalfa weevil but it is either a cut worm or army worm and a different chemical may be needed for its control.

SAIGON (AP) — The North Vietnamese offensive has had a disastrous impact on the Saigon government's pacification program in some areas while others virtually are unscathed so far, official sources say.

Of the country's 12,000 hamlets, 983 are listed under enemy control as of April 30. In February, there were seven—all in one province.

Senior officials estimate that about 40 per cent of South Vietnam has been affected in some way by the offensive, which is now entering its third month.

The Communist command's biggest drive since the 1968 Tet offensive has forced the South Vietnamese to relinquish 14 of the country's 272 districts. Half of these were in Quang Tri, the country's northernmost province, lost in early May.

Some 564,000 people, or about 3 per cent of the total population of 18.9 million, are now under enemy control, officials admit.

The monthly pacification report at the end of February, a month before the offensive began, had listed only 6,000 people, or a fraction of one per cent, in this category, according to the hamlet evaluation system which U.S. and South Vietnamese officials use to measure the effectiveness of the government's security program.

Reaching its highest levels since Tet 1968, terrorism in April resulted in 631 persons killed, 1,162 wounded and 2,196 abducted. Most of the latter, sources said, were young people conscripted as Viet Cong soldiers or to work as laborers or porters.

Since the upsurge began in early March, casualties include 106 village and hamlet officials killed, 44 wounded and 46 kidnapped.

Peonies Offer Show of Color

May is peony time. Now is a good time to observe peonies in gardens of friends, neighbors, or in public gardens to select varieties for late summer planting.

Peonies provide a spectacular floral show with a minimum of care and expense. The large flowers are not the only ornamental feature. The glossy, compact foliage remains attractive most of the summer.

Peonies make few demands. Plant them in a sunny, well drained location where their roots do not have to compete with other plants.

You can select from three types of peonies. Most popular are the common herbaceous peonies that die back to the soil level each fall.

Another type, the tree peony, has woody stems that persist from year to year. Tree peonies are generally more expensive and difficult to grow than the other types.

A third type, the hybrid peony, has foliage that dies back to ground level as the common peonies do, but is developed largely from crosses between the other two types.

For the home garden the herbaceous peonies are most rewarding. There are many flower forms to choose from that include single, semi-double, double, Japanese, and anemone.

For many years the double forms were most popular. However, the large flowers were easily beaten down by rains and wind. As a result, popularity of the singles, Japanese, and anemone forms has increased. The lighter weight of these flowers makes staking and tying less important.

When peonies are in bloom, little needs to be done except enjoy them. A general garden fertilizer should be applied in early spring when flower buds are about the size of a pea.

Probably the most common complaint is failure to bloom. Healthy peony plants should flower freely once established in the proper location. Peonies require two to three years to develop into blooming plants.

If plants do not flower, or flower poorly at the end of that time, check the location and other conditions.

Too much shade, especially in dry soil under trees, will prevent blooming. Planting too deeply is another common cause of poor flowering. The young, developing buds, or "eyes," of the roots should never be planted deeper than two inches below the soil surface.

Ants are often seen on peony buds. They collect nectar produced by the developing bud but do not seriously damage the plant.

Peonies may be attacked by one or more leaf spots that make the plant unsightly in late summer. Thorough sanitation is important to keep them under control.

Cut off any diseased foliage in late summer and destroy it. If leaf spots become apparent in spring or early summer, sprays with a fungicide such as captan or zineb will help control them. Sprays must be repeated at seven to 10-day intervals, especially during damp weather periods.

Plant peonies only in late summer or early fall while they are dormant. Once established, plants have thrived in the same spot 50 to 100 years.

Will Probe Fire For Missing Man

BUTLER, Mo. (AP) — Workmen planned today to sift through the ruins left by a fire Sunday to determine if a missing man's body was in the debris.

The missing elderly man was identified as Charles Phillips, last seen at 8:30 p.m. Saturday in the courthouse yard. At that time, Phillips said he was going to his apartment which was among several above a brick building which was destroyed in the blaze.

Ten other occupants of the apartments were led to safety.

The building housed a furniture store and an insurance office on the first floor and had been a city landmark on the northeast corner of the Bates County courthouse square since 1882.

Damage was estimated at between $200,000 and $250,000 by Fire Chief Richard Leavitt.

The fire apparently started in one of the apartments, Leavitt said, but the cause was not immediately determined.

Two Children

Die in Blaze

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) — A fire that broke out in a rear portion of a single-story home here early Sunday took the lives of two children.

The dead were John Standefer, 7, and his sister, Pamela, 5, children of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Standefer. The parents were in Methodist Hospital suffering burns and shock and were reported in satisfactory condition.

Vandalism Creating Thoughts

CHICAGO (AP) — Rudolph Jordan and his family began having second thoughts about moving into their newly purchased home in an all-white neighborhood after vandals smashed 32 windows in the house last week, splashed paint on draperies and rugs and attempted to burn down the garage.

But when moving day came this weekend, the Jordans found they had more offers of help than they could use.

Many of the South Side neighborhood's white residents still weren't speaking to the Jordans, but their children came over to play with the two Jordan youngsters.

And a few adults along with members of an interracial group called Zealous Efforts for Better Racial Attitudes (ZEBRA), offered to help clean up the broken glass and repaint the house.

The volunteers rolled up the dining and living room rugs and painted the living room a bright gold.

A teen-age group from a Chicago suburb arrived with gardening tools and cut and manicured the front and back lawns.

And when the furniture arrived, everyone dropped what he was doing to help carry it into the house past the Chicago policeman keeping a 24-hour-a-day watch in a squad car parked across the street.

Defense Investigators Function as Collective

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — The five defense investigators at the Angela Davis trial all are members of the Communist party and function as a collective.

Unlike investigators at most criminal trials, they are responsible for organizing and running a worldwide campaign to "Free Angela."

Among them, they have traveled tens of thousands of miles speaking and raising money for Miss Davis' defense.

They have organized rallies, written statements and helped prepare a weekly account of Miss Davis' murder-kidnap-conspiracy trial proceedings. And they have decided what Miss Davis should do—and whom she should meet in her limited free time.

Like other investigators, they have also questioned prospective witnesses and discussed defense strategy with Miss Davis' attorneys.

They are all close to Miss Davis—and were friends long before the 28-year-old former UCLA philosophy instructor was accused of furnishing four guns and helping plot an abortive courthouse escape at the Marin County Civic Center on Aug. 7, 1970, which ended in four deaths.

Two of the five—Miss Davis' sister, Fania Davis Jordan, 24, and Franklin Alexander, 31—are cochairman of the National United Committee to Free Angela Davis and All Political Prisoners and act as chief spokesman for her defense, doing the bulk of the traveling and public speaking.

Franklin's wife, Kendra Alexander, 25, is the National United Committee's permanent representative at the trial, acting as liaison between the defense committee and the legal staff. She usually sits with Miss Davis and is often mistaken for her.

The Alexanders are perhaps Miss Davis' closest friends. Charlene Mitchell, 41, the Communist party's presidential candidate in 1968, is executive secretary of the National United Committee and runs its San Francisco office, which oversees activities of 200 "Free Angela" committees around the world.

The fifth investigator, Bettina Aptheker Kurzweil, 27, daughter of chief Marxist theoretician Herbert Aptheker, said she writes "almost all" of Miss Davis' statements. She is also responsible for contacts with congressmen, labor unions and the national peace movement and organized the May 20 anti-war and "Free Angela" rally here.

"We function as a collective," said Mrs. Kurzweil. "We try never to make individual decisions. We try to work together—and it's a very effective method of work."

"As you know, the composition of our staff is interracial, predominantly black which it should be—and the leadership is black, which it should be, too," said Mrs. Kurzweil, who is the only white investigator.

Thirteen Killed In Missouri

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A two-car head-on collision on Missouri Highway 114 Sunday afternoon that claimed two lives brought Missouri's Memorial Day weekend traffic death toll to 13.

The latest victims were Leoma Gordon, 31, of Morehouse, Mo., and James David Payne, 27, of Poplar Bluff.

Six of the holiday dead were involved in motorcycle accidents.

One motorcycle victim was James Bernard Schwartz, 21, of Koeltztown in south central Missouri. He was killed Sunday when his motorcycle and a car collided on Missouri 133 near Westphalia.

Samuel Brawley, 36, of Belleville, Ill., died in another Sunday accident. He was thrown from an overturning car that ran off Missouri 32 west of Licking.

David Mark Morgan, a 2-year-old Tulsa boy, died Saturday when a station wagon rammed down a 200-foot embankment a mile north of Noel and crashed onto Missouri 59.

The boy apparently released the emergency brake on the station wagon owned by the boy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Morgan, the highway patrol said.

Separate accidents Friday night and Saturday killed five motorists. Stephen A. Schmidt, 22, of St. Thomas, Mo.; Dennis James Merritt, 16, of St. Joseph; William O. Jennings, 18, of Monett; Richard S. Magee, 27, of Kansas City; and Floyd Jones, 25, of University City.

Mrs. Mary E. Ormsbee, 78, of Rolla, was killed Saturday in a two-car wreck on Missouri 28 northwest of Rolla. Four persons were injured in the crash. Charles Wayne Reding, 32, of Fairview and Edward Hardt, 27, of Granite City, Ill., died in separate accidents Friday night.

Reding was killed in a one-car wreck near Fairview. Hardt died in a two-car collision in St. Louis County.

Terrorist Group Warns Stuttgart

STUTTGART, Germany (AP) — A terrorist group called the Red Army Faction has warned the people of Stuttgart to get off the streets between 1 p.m. and 2 p.m. Friday because it will blow up three cars then "as a reminder of the bombing war of the U.S. imperialists in Vietnam."

The group has claimed responsibility for a series of bombings in the last two weeks at U.S. Army compounds and other buildings. The blasts have killed four U.S. servicemen and injured scores of other persons.

Keep Perspective On Memorial Day

Memorial Day, 1972. A day set aside by Congress in honor of veterans of America's wars.

As holidays go, Memorial Day has fallen on hard times lately. Where once it was one of the most somber and revered holidays, nowadays it seems to get scarcely a passing nod.

The sad fact is that Memorial Day has become another casualty of the Vietnam war. After 10 years of a war that has split the nation and tarnished, in some people's minds, the image of the military, we seem little disposed to honor our veterans.

Instead, the returning veteran today is more apt to confront open hostility or indifference, plus a closed job market. No "When Johnny Comes Marching Home" bands for him.

This, of course, is a grave injustice. Our military men are no more or less than the instruments of national policy. And those policies are determined by our elected officials, people WE put into office.

If Vietnam was a mistake, then it was the nation's mistake. To make our military men the scapegoats is both wrong and immoral.

To a large extent those who are inclined this way represent the younger segments of our population. They identify the American fighting man with Vietnam because that is all they have seen of war.

Such words as the Argonne Forest, Normandy, Iwo Jima, Inchon and the Yalu River do not register with them. But it is because American fighting men gave their lives at such places that they today enjoy the freedom to take to the streets to express their dissent.

As the passions of the day subside and history is once again put back in perspective, so will Memorial Day be. What our veterans have done for this country, over 200 years of history, will not be forgotten.

"PRISON? THIS IS AN ASYLUM, COMRADE, AND THAT'S OCCUPATIONAL THERAPY."

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — After President Nixon released ex-Teamsters boss Jimmy Hoffa from prison last Christmas, we reported that the President and the Teamsters had a secret relationship going as far back as 1960.

We quoted from a letter that Nixon's political lieutenant, Oakley Hunter, had written to Hoffa in 1960, telling of Nixon's intervention at the Justice Department in Hoffa's behalf. "I know for a fact," Hunter wrote Hoffa, "... that he (Nixon) discussed (your) case with the Attorney General."

Now we have learned that the Nixon Administration has just given a breather on a $1.3 million tax debt to another former Teamsters chief, Dave Beck, who also did time in a federal prison.

The commutation of Hoffa's 13-year sentence has been well publicized. But the deal with Beck was arranged so quietly that even some high Internal Revenue officials insist they are unaware of it.

Beck and the estate of his late wife, Dorothy, were dunned by Internal Revenue in 1966 for about $900,000 in back taxes. Beck decided to fight the civil case but lost it.

He was ordered to pay $739,161 for the years 1943-53. With interest, this amounted to a grand total of $1.3 million.

As it happens, his assets are tied up largely in land, listed under Washington state's community property law in his wife's estate. Internal Revenue customarily demands its money immediately, but it made an unusual exception for Beck.

Under the agreement with Internal Revenue, the estate can take five years and longer, if necessary, to sell of the land and pay back the Treasury. Meanwhile, Internal Revenue has mortgages on the land.

The advantage to Beck in this cozy arrangement is obvious. Immediate disposal of the land would bring fire-sale prices. If the land is sold selectively over a period of years, the odds are greater that Beck will be able to keep some profits for himself.

Some of Beck's payments will be applied to the interest part of his Treasury debt, thus giving him substantial breaks on his current income taxes.

During negotiations on the case, the estate's canny Seattle lawyer, George Constable, a former IRS official, intervened in Washington with the Administration. But, reached in Seattle, Constable would not comment.

Internal Revenue officials on the West Coast, to a man, denied that they had been dictated to by Washington.

Footnote: Of all the big labor unions, only the Teamsters have supported Nixon's economic policies. They are also expected to back him for re-election in November.

Testimony revealing a sharp drop in the criminal conviction rate was abruptly cancelled the other day on orders from Sen. John McClellan, D-Ark., who feared the facts might damage his image as a crimebuster and hurt him in his primary campaign.

The testimony was to be given by an official of the Administrative Office of the Federal Courts before McClellan's Subcommittee on Criminal Laws and Procedures.

It dealt with an exhaustive study showing how the conviction rate for federal crimes has dropped from 85 per cent to about 68 per cent in the past several years.

At first, McClellan's staff instructed that no copies of the study or the testimony be available for the press. McClellan himself planned to remain in Arkansas during the hearing.

On the morning of the hearing, however, the word came down for the testimony itself to be cancelled.

No explanation was given, but insiders told us that McClellan was afraid it might give his primary opponent, Rep. David Pryor, D-Ark., an issue at the eleventh hour.

The struggle of the House of Representatives to modernize itself with computers has touched off an old-fashioned, behind-the-scenes feud between House Administration Chairman Wayne Hayes, D-Ohio, and House Clerk W. Pat Jennings.

Up until last year, the Clerk's office controlled the embryonic data processing facilities in the House. A June 1971 "effectiveness audit," however, concluded that Jennings was running the computer facilities with all the formality of a flophouse landlord.

Hayes then took the computers from Jennings's jurisdiction, and the two have been at each other's throats since.

The study that triggered the brouhaha has been kept under wraps for 10 months. However, we have obtained a copy.

"The overall management of the Data Processing Office is handled in an informal manner..." the audit states. "Little management direction is given to the Office... Formal policies and procedures do not exist..."

With respect to Jennings's staff, the study noted that "the biggest drawback... is the overall lack of experience and the limited size of the staff to fully utilize the IBM 360-50 computer."

Renting this huge machine and its related equipment for $21,650 a month, said the report, was like buying a cannon to kill a housefly. Jennings was using it chiefly for "housekeeping" chores such as payroll and allowances.

This prompted the audit team to comment that "the IBM 360-50... is being utilized far below its capacity... In no sense can current usage be justification by having the machine."

The furious Jennings countered with a series of "white papers" directed at the House Administration Committee.

The audit team, Jennings fumed, "failed to recognize the unique political arena and special needs of the House which drastically affect its operations."

A Conservative View

Consider Costs of Clean-up

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — This past week brought the glum news from Ford Motor Company that it has run into serious trouble in complying with the Clean Air Act of 1970. Unless the trouble can be resolved, Ford's entire 1973 production line may have to be postponed from July to October. The economic consequences could be ruinous.

Kilpatrick

The news item finds its place in a growing file of similar stories, a file that might be labeled "The High Cost of Clean Living." Little by little, with every month that passes, awareness is growing not of the price of pollution — everyone is generally aware of that — but of the price of cleaning it up.

It is important that the price be reckoned, and it has not been reckoned so far. What has happened in this complex field of environmental improvement is what happens so often when "reform" gets out of hand. Ours is a tolerant nation, and for generations we tolerated abuse of the world around us. We learned to live with polluted rivers, dirty air, littered highways, noisy cities. Four or five years ago, revulsion abruptly set in. New laws were rushed into being, some of them bearing ferocious penalty provisions. Virtue, it appeared, had triumphed.

We are just now beginning to feel the weight of those laws. Ford's misery is only a small part of a large picture. Pursuant to the 1970 act, the government established rigorous standards for emission control devices to become effective on 1973 automobiles. In some fashion not altogether clear, but apparently in part the fault of its own overzealous personnel, Ford failed to perform proper tests on its engines. Unless relief is granted, elaborate new tests must be conducted in order to satisfy the Environmental Protection Agency. Within the industry, this is calamity.

So much for Ford. The larger point is that the development, testing and installation of these control devices unavoidably will exact a heavy price. Some of it can be absorbed out of profits; most of it will have to be passed along to the buyer. The figure most commonly mentioned is $200 per car.

A parallel story is developing within the electric power industry. In Michigan, the Consumers Power Company completed its Palisades nuclear plant. Environmentalists intervened with litigious objections. For 18 months the plant lay idle, at a capital cost of $53,000 per day, plus another million dollars a month for the purchase of substitute power. In the end, the company agreed to add $28 million worth of cooling towers as the price of settlement. We know who will pay that price. Question: Is it worth it?

Almost every major utility is grappling with the high cost of clean living. In an effort to meet air quality standards, large parts of the industry are shifting from domestic coal to imported fuel oil. We will be breathing a little better air. I don't mean to knock it.

But the public should know that all this costs money. Other factors are involved, of course, including the cost of labor and the cost of raising capital. But across the nation the pattern is the same. Florida Power & Light is asking a 15 per cent rate increase, Boston Edison 19 per cent, New Orleans Public Service 18 per cent, St. Louis 11 per cent, Cleveland 20 per cent, Tucson 8 per cent. Aubrey Wagner, director of the Tennessee Valley Authority, recently estimated that total compliance with maximum environmental requirements would cost $830 million a year on the TVA system alone. Rates would have to be doubled.

Perhaps so massive a price must be paid, but an impression is growing that in many areas, purity standards have been fixed at levels unrealistically high. This was the view expressed in Science magazine in November by Dr. H. E. Stokinger, a leading toxicologist. Many other scientists, in and out of government, are venturing the same critical view.

Stokinger's plea was for "sanity," but "sobriety" might be better understood. We have been on one prolonged and costly binge, not only in ecology but in overblown consumer protection also. What we face now — and it won't be pleasant — is the morning after the night before.

Is Moscow Summit Really a New 'Munich'?

WASHINGTON — Millions of Americans have applauded President Nixon's visit to the Soviet Union, fully accepting the President's characterization of it as "a journey for peace."

They view these new agreements and acts of cooperation as gestures of sanity by men acutely aware of the perils to humanity in the event of military conflict between the two great super powers.

Rowan

We applaud steps to slow down an ever-spiraling arms race that drains both nations of resources desperately needed for human uplift—an arms race that lifts ever higher the level of terror but never really adds to the relative security of either country.

The applause comes with extra gusto from some Americans, so surprised are they that it is the old Communist-hunter,

Nixon, who has taken these steps toward "peaceful coexistence."

But none of us can lose sight of the troubles being cooked up for the President by Americans who used to be his ideological soul brothers. They have begun a major campaign to make Americans believe that Moscow has become the new "Munich" where Mr. Nixon was making "an outright gift to the Soviet Union, bestowing upon this Communist colossus nuclear superiority for years and years to come. In one stroke the United States would permanently remove the nuclear umbrella of protection it has extended to our allies and bring our own survival into grave question as well."

That quotation is from the May 27 issue of Human Events, a conservative journal which is featuring alarming allegations that the SALT (Strategic Arms Limitation) package negotiated with the Russians virtually gives world domination to the Soviets.

President Nixon and his advisers will have quite a time answering these allegations if they are to secure Senate ratification of the treaty portion of the arms agreement.

Human Events charges, for example, that the agreement would:

✓ Allow the Soviets "to surpass the United States in both the number of nuclear subs and sea-based offensive missiles by approximately 50 per cent."

✓ "Allow the Soviets to have 1,400 land-based ICBMs, while the United States land-based offensive missile force would be fixed at its present 1,054 level. If the Soviets by some whim choose not to cash in their SS-7s and 8s for subs, their lead in land-based offensive missiles would increase by approximately 200 more."

✓ Create a situation where, once the Russians match U.S. warhead technology, the Soviets would have the "capacity to rain at least five times as many warheads upon the United States as we will be able to unleash upon the Soviet Union."

Many other conservative groups

(prodded by Pentagon informants) are moving, like Human Events, to portray Mr. Nixon as a Neville Chamberlain who has naively agreed "to freeze the United States into a posture of nuclear inferiority."

This propaganda campaign will have impact in the Senate and elsewhere because of lingering American distrust of any agreement the Soviets make—distrust based on an assumption, ill-founded perhaps, that the Communists are trickier and more devious negotiators than any non-Communists.

Yet, these rightist assaults on the President will not prevail, primarily because not even Mr. Nixon's most fervid political enemies can conceive of his negotiating a "nuclear sellout."

The significance of the arms and other agreements made in Moscow really hinges on an area of discussion about which we will be told very little, if anything:

What understanding did Nixon and Brezhnev come to regarding wars of liberation?

Oswald: "Anyone has a pretty good idea about what to do with aces, kings, queens and jacks."

Jim: "Most players also seem to have a fair idea about what to do with 10s and nines. When they get down lower they are inclined to treat those very small cards carelessly."

Oswald: "Just recently I watched a promising young player throw away an easy slam on account of this carelessness. He won the club opening and led the four of diamonds at trick two."

Jim: "Why do you say he is a promising young player? It is just automatic for a good player to lead the six of diamonds and not the four. Once he has made that careful first play he is sure of his slam against any diamond combination except all four in the East hand. After his four-spot lead, the fact that East held three diamonds to the jack meant that he could never unblock the diamond suit for dummy's five and three."

Oswald: "Because he is not going to make that same mistake again. The moment the hand had ended with the defense scoring 100 points he turned to his partner and said, 'I certainly chucked you all over the lot that time.' The partner had no idea what had happened but this player knew."

Jim: "In that case he has a bridge future. Everyone makes mistakes. The man who recognizes his will continue to improve."

Earl Wagner Holds Off Hard Charges

By VAUGHN HART
Sports Editor

Earl Wagner, Pleasantville, Iowa, held off a fierce challenge by defending champion Ray Lee Goodwin, Dick Sutcliffe, Jerry Blundy and Roy Hibbard, and topped his first International Motor Contest Association sprint race at the Missouri State Fairgrounds, Sunday.

A sparse crowd of only around 4,000 watched as Wagner took the lead from Blundy, the defending IMCA sprint champion and current point leader of Galesburg, Ill., on the third lap as the Iowa pilot found the groove high on the cushion and raced for the checkered flag in the annual Sedalia Jaycees Memorial Classic.

Blundy, who damaged the rear end of his racer in Saturday night's IMCA sprint show at Eldon, Iowa, vaulted into the lead on the first lap from his pole position.

The first five cars in the feature's finish, strided within two seconds of each other virtually all the way.

Goodwin, winner of Saturday night's rain-shortened program in Iowa, had Wagner set up all the way, but just couldn't get past him.

Wagner, who saw his one-lap IMCA record broken during the time trials by Goodwin, timed in with the eighth fastest time of the day at .23.16, but had to place in the consolation feature to make the field in the 30-lap main event. He made it a double payoff by winning the consy.

Goodwin turned successive laps of .22.79 and .22.81 during the time trials. The former mark broke Wagner's one-lap mark set last year at .23.03.

Wagner started on the outside of the fourth row, but by the time that the third lap had been recorded, he had passed Blundy, David James, Sutcliffe, Ron Taylor, Goodwin and Hibbard to take the lead.

The day's activity was virtually accident free, but the yellow flag did come out twice during the feature. The first yellow flew in the 13th lap, when Tom Stassa hit the wall on the front straightaway as he lost control of his sprinter coming out of the fourth turn. Stassa rejoined the field.

Two laps later, James spun in the first turn, bringing out the second yellow flag. He, like Stassa, was able to rejoin the race.

Bill Utz, Sedalia; Dean Shirley, Lincoln, Ill.; Steve Shultz, Chillicothe, who holds the all-time one-lap record at the Fairgrounds' half-mile track; Ralph Parkinson, Jr., Kansas City; and Taylor rounded out the top 10 in sixth through 10th respectively.

In his first attempt to qualify for the feature in the first heat race, Roy Hibbard broke a drive shaft and had to pull out.

Parkinson, Shirley and Flea Atkin, Holts Summit, Mo., were the three heat winners. Shirley won his heat in record time. He was caught at 3:11.47, breaking Thad Doshier's eight-lap mark of 3:16.58 set in 1971 during the Missouri State Fair.

One other record was established during the IMCA program; that came in the match race (trophy dash), when Goodwin was clocked at 2:02.73. That shattered Grady Wade's time of 2:03.58, established in 1966.

In the demolition derby, Richard D. Andrews, Fair Grove, Mo., copped the top prize in his somewhat "bent up" Cadillac.

Heat wins in the demolition derby were recorded by Dean Pine, Raytown; Bill Edwards, Dearborn, Mo.; Daryl Hoffester, Florence, Mo.; and Jack Balsee, Boonville.

Blue Hurls Five Strong Innings

By HERSHEL NISSENSEN.
Associated Press Sports Writer
Vida Blue had a pretty good start Sunday, but George Hendrick provided an even better finish.

Blue, Oakland's celebrated holdout, made his first 1972 start and fired five scoreless innings against the Chicago White Sox, allowing only one hit and fanning five before he left for a pinch hitter.

"I think five innings was just about right," said the 22-year-old southpaw who had an 80-pitch limit and used 77 of them. The game was scoreless when Blue departed. The A's took a 3-0 lead in the sixth inning but the White Sox scored once in the eighth, twice in the ninth and once in the 10th for a 4-3 lead.

But with two out in the last of the 10th, Mike Hegan singled off Steve Kealey and Hendrick blasted his first major league home run for a 5-4 Oakland triumph.

Elsewhere in the American League, Minnesota whipped Texas 7-2, Detroit edged the New York Yankees 5-4, Baltimore trimmed Cleveland 5-1, Boston downed Milwaukee 4-1 after the Brewers fired manager Dave Bristol and California defeated Kansas City 4-2.

Blue, the AL's most valuable player and Cy Young Award winner last season, tuned up for his first 1972 start by hurling one inning in relief last week and losing to California, allowing two runs.

It appeared as though he might be in for more of the same Sunday, walking three batters and throwing 43 pitches in the first two innings.

"I was nervous because there were about 45,000 people here to see me pitch," he said. "Dick Williams (the Oakland manager) came out to talk to me in the second inning just to give me a breather."

Blue settled down after that, yielding only a third-inning single to Richie Allen.

"I was as good as I had to be," he said. "I need at least four starts to get back where I was last year."

Last year produced a 24-8 record, 1.82 earned run average and 301 strikeouts. Then came the salary battle with owner Charles O. Finley, with Blue asking first for $115,000 and finally accepting $63,000.

Oakland's triumph kept the A's one game ahead of Minnesota in the AL West and dropped Chicago to third, 1½ games back.

Harmon Killebrew drove in five runs with his 11th career grand slam and a double and Rick Renick belted a 442-foot home run as the Twins drubbed the Rangers behind Jim Kaat's four-hitter. It was Killebrew's 520th career homer, one behind Ted Williams for sixth place on the all-time list.

Rookie Paul Jata, replacing the injured Al Kaline, singled and scored in the fifth inning and doubled and scored again in the seventh as the Tigers beat the Yankees behind Chuck Seelbach's strong relief pitching.

Seelbach allowed only four hits over the final 6 2-3 innings and left the potential tying run at second base in the ninth.

Jim Palmer stopped slumping Cleveland on four hits and drilled a two-run double as the Orioles handed the Indians their fifth consecutive setback.

Palmer doubled in the second inning to put Baltimore in front 2-1 and singled in the third as the Orioles scored three unearned runs and again in the eighth. The Indians slipped to third place in the AL East, a half-game behind Baltimore and 1½ in back of front-running Detroit.

The Brewers, whose 10-21 record is the poorest in the majors, canned Bristol in the early morning hours Sunday and replaced him with Del Crandall, who had been managing their Evansville farm club in the American Association.

Crandall won't take over until the team returns home Tuesday night, so he wasn't around Sunday to see the Brewers, handled by coach Roy McMillan, suffer their third straight defeat when Boston's Carlton Fisk slugged a tie-breaking homer in the seventh inning and added a two-run double in the eighth.

That nudged the Red Sox into fourth place in the East Division, a half-game in front of New York and five behind Detroit.

Sore-armed Clyde Wright made his first appearance since May 18 and allowed only four hits in seven innings and walked a home run as the Angels turned back the Royals.

44 American Golf Entries Are in Field

SANDWICH, England (AP) — Forty-four American golfers were among the field of more than 230 setting out today in a bid to tame the wind and stop Michael Bonallack from winning his sixth British Amateur title.

A gale has swept across Royal St. George's links during the last three days of practice. Weather experts predicted it will be as bad or worse for the first round, scheduled to last all of today and part of Tuesday.

Many of the Americans, practicing over the 6,633-yard, par 34-36-70 course beside Pegwell Bay, said they had never played in such a wind before.

Bonallack, 37, will start favorite. He has won the title five times since 1961, and has played this course four times already this year to get the feel of it.

The Americans in contention include two former Walker Cup players—Ed Tutwiler of Indianapolis and Dick Siderow of Westport, Conn.

Both Tutwiler and Siderow warned British players to watch out for Jim Blair of Balwin, Mo.

Five Into NCAA Finals

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association said today five of its district championships have been decided and the winners will play in the College World Series at Omaha, Neb., June 9-15.

Temple won district 2, Iowa district 4, Oklahoma district 5, Texas district 6 and defending champion Southern California district 8.

Temple beat Penn State over the weekend 4-3. Iowa bumped Bowling Green, Ohio, twice 4-2 and 7-5. Oklahoma surprised Tulsa 6-3 and 5-4 and Southern California outscored California-Santa Barbara 9-5 and 13-6. Texas won its district title a week ago.

Action in district 1 was scheduled to be resumed today after darkness Sunday caused a game between Harvard and Northeastern to be called. Harvard was leading 18-6.

In an earlier game in District 1, Connecticut defeated Harvard 8-5 in 16 innings. Connecticut is unbeaten and Harvard and Northeastern had each lost once in the double elimination event.

Districts 3 and 7 open their tournaments Thursday. Six teams will face double elimination at Gastonia, N.C., in district 3.

At Mesa, Ariz., Arizona State, the nation's top-ranked college team, will meet Weber State in a best-of-3 game series for the district 7 crown.

Errors Sink Cubs

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

When Abner Doubleday thought up that game with the bats and balls and bases, he remembered to give all the players a glove.

The glove, in case the Houston Astros and Chicago Cubs are wondering, is used to catch the ball. It was a job neither team did very well on Sunday.

Houston snatched a 6-5 defeat from the jaws of victory, giving Los Angeles a run without benefit of a base hit on two 11th inning errors. Chicago outdid that, giving Montreal two runs without a hit on a pair of early errors and then allowing the winner to score on another fielding flub to lose 7-5.

Elsewhere in the National League Sunday, St. Louis beat New York 8-3, Pittsburgh nipped Philadelphia 6-5, San Diego beat Cincinnati 5-2 and San Francisco split a double-header with Atlanta, winning 3-2 and then losing 7-6 in 11 innings.

The Astros took a 4-3 lead into the ninth inning against the Dodgers with Larry Dierker, working on a six-hitter. But Duke Sims opened with a double and Bill Russell singled him to third. That brought on Jim Ray, the Astros' relief ace, and when he walked Wes Parker, it loaded the bases.

Pinch hitter Frank Robinson lofted a sacrifice fly, but when Jesus Alou ran into Cesar Ceno, he jarred the ball loose and one run scored with the bases remaining loaded. A fielder's choice grounder by Bill Buckner brought the tie-run home. Two innings later, the Dodgers won it. Second baseman Bobby Fenwick threw Russell's leadoff grounder away for an error. Russell moved up on a sacrifice and after Steve Garvey bounced out, first baseman Lee May kicked Bobby Valentine's grounder, allowing the winning run to score.

Don Kessinger's eighth inning throwing error allowed Montreal to score its winning run against Chicago but the Cubs had set the tone way back in the second when a pair of errors by Carmen Fanzone led to two runs for the Expos.

Ken Singleton opened with a walk and with one out, Fanzone kicked Tim Lincecum's grounder. A sacrifice advanced the runners and then Fanzone fumbled Ron Hunt's bouncer, allowing Singleton to score and Foli to reach third. Then the Expos worked the double steal, with Foli swiping home on the front end.

With the score tied at 5-5 in the eighth, Foli beat out an infield hit and then circled the bases on a fielder's choice and Kessinger's wild throw.

Pittsburgh saw a 4-3 lead evaporate when Philadelphia pushed across two runs in the top of the ninth inning, then bounced from behind with two in their half of the inning to beat the Phillies.

Nate Colbert ripped his 10th homer of the season and added a pair of singles, leading San Diego past Cincinnati.

The victory snapped a six-game losing streak for the

Atlanta Classic

Lunn Captures Tourney

ATLANTA (AP) — "I can't remember hitting the putt on 18," said an almost-dazed Bob Lunn Sunday after he ended a year-long victory drought on the pro golf tour with a two-shot victory in the $130,000 Atlanta Golf Classic.

"I think everyone goes through these things," Lunn said of the lengthy slump that had seen him win only $7,307 on this year's tour before grabbing the $26,000 first prize here.

"I don't know what happened," he said. "My putting slacked off and I was not hitting the ball as well." Lunn's downfall coincided with a weight loss that saw him plunge from a hefty 240 to only 168 pounds before he started eating again, learning it a comfortable weight.

Lunn started the final round at the hilly, 6,883-yard, par 72 Atlanta Country Club course in a deadlock for first with South African Gary Player.

Lunn went to the finishing hole with a two-shot edge and watched from the fairway as Player knocked in a 12-foot birdie putt. Lunn then placed his third shot only six feet from the pin and made it for a birdie and a final round 69, leaving him at 275, 13-under.

Player closed with a 72-217 while Lou Graham was in third place alone at 278 after a closing 79.

Homero Blancas and Dave Hill deadlocked at 279 and Gay Brewer was alone at 280.

Al Unser Moved To Second; Grant Dropped Back to 12th

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Mark Donohue wore the mantle of victory with a smile here Sunday night, but there was an undercurrent of confusion and frustration at the Indianapolis 500-mile race victory dinner.

Donohue, a moon-faced 35-year-old Pennsylvanian, played it cool Saturday to win the 56th edition of the Indy classic, and he was cool and calm again Sunday night.

With his mother, Mrs. Zilly Donohue, car owner Roger Penske and his crew on the dais with him, Donohue said, "I must say this is the happiest time of my life."

The victory in America's most important and prestigious auto race put $218,767.90 into the Penske racing till. That payoff came from a record Indianapolis Motor Speedway purse of $1,011,845.94, the third straight $1 million payoff at Indy.

But the tenor of the night was reflected in remarks by the 1970 and 71 Indy champ, Al Unser, elevated from third to second place as Jerry Grant was penalized from second to 12th by Speedway officials after a protest by Unser's chief mechanic, George Bignotti.

Bignotti complained that Grant took on fuel from the tank of his teammate, Bobby Unser, in a voluntary pit stop on the 187th lap of the 200-lap race. Each car is allowed a specific amount of fuel and may not use another car's supply.

Al Unser said, "It's kind of bad to take somebody's place. I don't feel like we belong up here (in second place). Jerry Grant should have been up here talking to you."

Grant's car owner, Dan Gurney, who saw his top driver, Bobby Unser, go out of the race with a mechanical failure after leading the first 31 laps, has three days to file an appeal of the Speedway decision with the United States Auto Club.

Gurney, a former driver at Indy, said Sunday night after the victory dinner, "The main thing I want to do is clear up the misunderstanding. There is an implication we came in (on the last pit stop) needing fuel, and that is not true."

Gurney said he was not sure, yet, if his Dan Gurney All-America Racers, Inc., would file an appeal with USAC.

Grant, 37, from Seattle, Wash., said, "Daniel feels the penalty was so severe because the officials thought I needed gas. I didn't need any fuel, only a wheel change."

He said, "We're not going to cry out loud here over only a $72,000 penalty. We came to race this year and we'll be back again."

Al Unser won $95,257.89 for second place, while Grant took home only $23,852.85 for 12th.

Other top money winners included third-place finisher Joe Leonard with $58,797.89 and 14th-place finisher Gary Bettenhausen, Donohue's teammate, who led the race for 139 laps before encountering mechanical problems. Bettenhausen won $41,283.88.

Of the total purse, the Speedway paid $831,000, the Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce Citizens Speedway Committee paid $40,000 and the remaining $140,845.94 came from commercial accessory prizes.

The crowd at Saturday's race was estimated at 275,000. The Speedway never releases official crowd totals.

Mike Hiss edged Sam Posey in a tight vote for rookie of the year. Hiss, from Tustin, Calif., finished seventh in the race after starting in 26th place in the 33-car field. Posey was the top rookie finisher, winding up fifth.

A protest against Donohue early Sunday was disallowed. Gurney said his crew thought Grant had lost a lap in the scoring, enough to make him the winner. But he later said he was actually just asking to have the scoring clarified and he was satisfied after viewing the scoring and timing records.

Considering the record speeds that were turned in by the entire field during practice and qualifying, and particularly by Bobby Unser, the race was slower than expected.

Donohue had the top lap (the 150th) at 187.539 miles an hour and also established a record for average speed in posting a 163.465 m.p.h. for the 500 miles. The old mark was 157.735 set by Unser last year.

Bristol Looking ... Looking

Dave Bristol appears in deep thought Sunday as he looks down at the Milwaukee Brewers working out after Bristol was fired as their manager, prior to Milwaukee's game in Boston. The Brewers' management says Del Crandall, who will be moved up from the Brewers' Evansville, Ind., farm club in the American Association, will take over the position vacated by Bristol. Bristol said he was "confident" that he could land another job in baseball. (UPI)

Wins Second Drag Title

LIBERAL, Kan. (AP) — John Dusenberry of Denver, Colo., driving a Ford Torino, took his second world championship series in succession Sunday in National Hot Rod Association drag races.

Dusenberry defeated Dennis Sobolick, also of Denver, who drove a Comet, in the stock eliminator.

John Dekker of Denver outran a fellow townsman, Rob Williams, in his Assassination Barracuda in the Funny Car bracket competition during which the timing lights failed. Williams piloted a Challenger.

In the semifinals, Dekker had defeated Pusch Cain's Mustang from Kansas City with a 6.85 elapsed time at 215 miles per hour. The Mustang's elapsed time was 6.98 and clocking 189 m.p.h.

Gary Cheatum of Wichita, Kan., in his brand new rear engine dragster, got an automatic win in the final round of the top fuel eliminator when Junior Kaiser of Denver redlighted. Kaiser had gained the finals by defeating Jerry Wilson of Denver with a 6.8 elapsed time. Cheatum had a 6.96 elapsed time in beating Ed Renck of Denver.

John Hagen of St. Paul, Minn., took the pro spot eliminator, beating Irv Beringhaus. Hagen's elapsed time was 10.11 and Beringhaus' 10.22. Earlier, Hagen had beaten Lynn Harrison of Oklahoma City, Okla., who drove a Camaro.

In the competition eliminator, Jim Spotts of Fort Morgan, Colo., scored an automatic win when Frank Smith of Oklahoma City redlighted. Smith had set a national record earlier for A-Dragster with a 7.76 elapsed time and 193.50 m.p.h.

Bob Riffle of Columbus, Ohio, driving his Rod Shop Duster, was upset when he missed a shift that allowed Harold Babcock of Wichita, Kan., to win. Riffle was a national record holder.

Division champion Judy Lilly of Denver, a hairdresser, driving a Barracuda, ran a 10.50 elapsed time and bested Artie Toftland, in a Firebird, in the super spot eliminator. Toftland's time was 12.26 seconds.

Fourteen national records were established during the two-day meet which drew more than 300 cars.

The team of Dr. Robert Stockwood and Dr. John Erickson tied the team of Dan Wolf and Pete Holloway for first place in the Walnut Hills Country Club 54-hole Team Tournament held Saturday and Sunday.

Both teams posted handicapped scores of 190 to split the $75 first-place prize.

Third place found two other teams tying for those honors with 194's. The Jim Dinsdale-Hank Lamn team, along with the team of Bob Cummings and Larry Whitesides carded those scores. The two teams won $26 each.

Fifth place went to Bob Curry and Jim Fletcher; there was a tie for sixth between the teams of Elmer Meyers-Richard Meyers and Bill Rabourn-Jack Fowler. Each team carded scores of 196.

Cleveland Sparks Cards; Wright Ties Up Royals

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Reggie Cleveland proved a pretty good hitting pitcher for the St. Louis Cardinals Sunday. The Kansas City Royals ran into one, too, one Clyde Wright of the California Angels.

Cleveland hit three singles in the Cardinals' 8-3 victory over the New York Mets at St. Louis. Wright slammed a home run and a single to beat the Royals at Anaheim 4-2.

St. Louis did a lot of hitting, collecting 16 blows, including Cleveland's single barrage. The Cards vaulted into a 3-0 lead when Luis Melendez singled in two tallies in the second inning and Cleveland walked with the bases loaded in the fourth.

Four singles, Dal Maxvill's double and Cleveland's third single gave the Cards four more in the seventh. Cleveland is 4-3.

Wright, seeing action for the first time since May 18 after nursing a sore shoulder and twisted ankle, had a one-hitter until Lou Piniella, Cookie Rojas and Amos Otis got consecutive hits for the Royals' first run.

Wright's home run came off loser Dick Drago, 2-4, in the fifth. After his single in the seventh, he was replaced by a pinch runner and Eddie Fisher mopped up.

The Royals moved to Minnesota for today's action and planned to pitch Paul Splittorff, 4-3, against Jim Perry, 3-3. The Cards had a date at home this afternoon with the Mets again and called on Scipio Spinks, 3-1, to go against Buzz Capra, 3-2.

Dave Price Sets Record At EZ Track

Dave Price of Kansas City shattered the one-lap record during the EZ Speedway go-cart racing program Saturday night with a time of :22.80. That battered the record set only one week before by Kansas City's Rusty Schworer of :22.90.

Schworer captured first place in both the super heat and the feature events. Benny Schrimp, Kansas City, was second in the feature; Ted Butler, Kansas City, finished third in that event.

Scott Schrimp, Kansas City, and Clifford Price, Sedalia, rounded out the top three places in the super heat.

John Wisdom, Kansas City; Bruce Mallory, Sedalia; and Tim Mosier, Sedalia, won the top three places in the fast heat.

Go-cart racing is held each Saturday night at the speedway, south of Sedalia. Time trials begin at 8 p.m.

At USTFF Meet

11 Marks Broken; Ryun Suffers Injury

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Eleven records, including an American women's standard in the high jump, were set during the U.S. Track and Field Federation meet here over the weekend, but for Jim Ryun it marked another time of frustration.

Ryun, the world mile and half-mile record holder who is trying for a comeback which will carry him to the Munich Olympics this year, sustained a muscle strain in his right thigh running on a wet track in a qualifying heat Friday. He had to scratch from the 880-yard finals Saturday.

"I don't know," was Ryun's reply when asked when he might resume running. "I seem to have a little bit of strain in my right leg."

Ryun insisted the injury was "nothing serious," and that he had dropped out of the half-mile finals only minutes before the race began only because his leg did not respond as he wanted during a warmup and he didn't want to risk further injury.

His coach, Bob Timmons of the University of Kansas, said only time will tell how serious the injury is and what effect it will have on Ryun's training schedule.

Ryun needs sprint work, Timmons said, and the injury could rob him of precious time as he readies himself for the U.S. Olympic trials this summer.

"I don't know how he'll react to the injury," said Timmons.

"He was thinking about meet competition this week on the West Coast. But now we just can't say whether he'll be able to run."

Ryun had posted the best qualifying time in the 880 Friday night — 1:49.1. That time would have won the finals Saturday night. Ken Sparks of the Chicago Track Club took the event in 1:49.3.

Ryun's dropping out of the featured half-mile was not the only disappointment for the throng of nearly 10,000 for Saturday's finals.

Only two men's records were set and neither was spectacular. Efren Gipson of Lamar, Tex., University ran the 440-yard intermediate hurdles in 49.9 seconds for one and Brian Oldfield of Chicago Track Club and Bob Stoltman of Western Kentucky both threw the discus 193 feet, 9 inches for the other. Oldfield won the discus because he uncorked his toss first.

Among the other records set during the two days was a women's high jump mark of 5 feet, 10 inches by Audrey Reid of Texas Women's University. That also wiped out the U.S. women's record of 5-9 1/4 set in 1956 by Mildred McDaniel.

Pacific Coast Club won the men's championship with 80 points to 42 for runnerup Chicago Track Club, 34 for Kansas State and 23 for Kansas. The women's title went to Texas Track Club with 86 points, well ahead of the 61 racked up by the Topeka, Kan., Cosmo Club.

Foyt Suffers Burns At DuQuoin Feature

DUQUOIN, Ill. (AP) — Race driver A. J. Foyt was listed in good condition at Marshall Browning Hospital, where he remained overnight Sunday with burns suffered during a pit stop in a 100-mile United States Auto Club event earlier in the day.

Officials at the DuQuoin State Fairgrounds said Foyt, a three-time winner of the Indianapolis 500, was leading the event by 35 seconds when he pulled into the pit to refuel on the 86th lap.

Foyt apparently left the pit area too soon, authorities said, jerking the fuel hose from his Ford-powered racing car, and spilling the fuel on his back and into the car's cockpit.

The fuel then ignited, causing Foyt to leap from the car, his clothes ablaze. While attendants extinguished the fire, the car proceeded an eighth of a mile down the track.

Dr. William Fulk, who attended Foyt, said the 37-year-old Houston, Tex., veteran suffered first and second degree burns on the face, right arm and right leg and a dislocated left ankle.

Tom Bigelow of Whitewater, Wis., driving a Chevrolet-powered racing car, won the dirt track event in 1a, 07.52. A Belleville driver, Arnie Knepper, was second.

Slumping Freighter

The liberian freighter Oriental Warrior, which caught fire at sea Thursday, sinks at its moorings Sunday in the St. Johns River at Jacksonville, Fla., coming to rest on the bottom with the decks barely above the water. Fires still burned in the hold and divers were trying to find the leak before the vessel capsized. (UPI)

Candidate Blasts McClellan's Pull

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ted Boswell of Bryant, a candidate for the U.S. Senate, has accused Sen. John L. McClellan of using his political influence to "force the assistance" of the FBI to help him get re-elected.

Boswell said Saturday that McClellan was allowed to speak at an FBI-sponsored law enforcement training session at Jonesboro Thursday in violation of a rule of the agency that prohibits it from becoming involved in political races.

Boswell, one of three candidates seeking to defeat McClellan in Tuesday's Democratic primary, said McClellan was invited to speak to the more than 200 officers by Jonesboro Police Chief James Hanley.

The candidate said that when McClellan and Hanley entered the meeting room, Herbert Hoxie, special agent in charge of the Little Rock FBI office, wanted to object to McClellan's appearance but did not.

"Sen. McClellan used his well-known power, seniority and influence better known as threats, intimidation and pressure to get into the meeting and to get an introduction by Hoxie," Boswell said.

McClellan knew, after getting into the meeting and after being introduced by Hoxie, it really did not matter what he said to the group; the open support of the FBI had been implied," Boswell said.

He said that after McClellan's remarks, Hoxie stated that McClellan's presence was in no way to be considered an endorsement by the FBI.

McClellan said later that he did not know who gave him the invitation to meet with the law enforcement officials but added: "I don't know what's wrong with speaking to my constituents."

Hoxie issued a statement saying the FBI conference had been scheduled for almost two months without any knowledge that McClellan would be in Jonesboro. Hoxie said McClellan was not invited by the FBI to speak and that the senator's appearance was a surprise.

Diver Survives Shark's Attack

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A 30-year-old abalone diver emerged from three hours of surgery in satisfactory condition after an attack by a 12-foot shark while diving in Tomales Bay.

The victim, Helmut Himmrich, of Lodi, Calif., was reported Sunday by Letterman Hospital officials to be resting comfortably after his ordeal.

Himmrich was grabbed by the shark Sunday while diving just south of Tomales Point, about 40 miles north of San Francisco.

Himmrich surfaced beside a small boat anchored offshore. Horrified occupants noticed the shark ripping at Himmrich's right thigh. They pulled him into the boat.

An unidentified Coast Guard paramedic who happened to be at the scene gave first aid until a Coast Guard helicopter arrived and evacuated the victim.

Kansas Records Four Fatalities

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Four fatalities have been recorded as a result of Kansas highway accidents during the Memorial Day weekend.

Names of two of the victims had not been disclosed because the highway patrol had been unable to contact relatives.

Two women, from Lincoln, Neb., were killed Sunday and two other persons hospitalized as a result of a single car accident on U.S. Highway 73 four miles south of Atchison.

Two others were killed in separate accidents Sunday.

Andrew Kahlor, 78, of Oberlin, Kan., died in a two-car collision on U.S. 83 north of Oberlin.

George Ballard, 39, of Council Bluffs, Iowa, was killed in a fiery accident on U.S. 36 east of Marysville when his pickup truck was in a collision with a tractor-trailer rig.

Dirty Feet Tipoff For Poor Porno

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — It's easy to spot a poor-quality pornographic movie, according to Asst. Atty. Gen. Ray Marky. "The model's feet are dirty."

Marky calls himself Florida's "Mr. Porn" and "Chief Smut Nut." Florida Atty. Gen. Robert Shevin says Marky knows "more about pornography than anybody in the Southeast."

As the state's legal expert on illegal sexiness, Marky is the man the state's police forces call for advice when they want to raid a smut shop or a movie house.

And he says the job has its drawbacks.

A newspaper reported that he sat through two showings of a film called "Tittillating Tex" before deciding police could close the theater. Not so, said Marky.

"Once was enough" to make the judgment, he said. But people still believe he sat through an encore. "I can't go anywhere without people saying, 'You like those dirty movies, don't you? You see them twice.'"

Marky said he reads lewd books or views allegedly pornographic movies about once a month to advise police and prosecutors if the material is legally obscene.

He said his biggest problem is with overzealous policemen.

"I have insisted you have got to use very delicate tools and very nefarious methods," he said. "You go in there and get a book and you have a nice, quiet trial. You don't go sweeping in there with the trucks, the buses and the cameras and seize everything."

Marky said his only objection to pornography is that it damages the well being of some people by substituting vicarious pleasures for the normal relationship between a man and a woman.

Humphrey, McGovern In Battle

NEW YORK (AP) — Presidential hopefuls Hubert H. Humphrey and George McGovern, campaigning for votes in the California primary election, have hit a television jackpot by agreeing to public confrontations: three free hours of network time.

CBS gave them their first one late Sunday afternoon with a special edition of "Face the Nation." They will have another go at each other Tuesday night with a special edition of "Meet the Press" on NBC, followed next Sunday on ABC with a special version of "Issues and Answers."

The interview form used by all three programs—tough questions posed by well-prepared newsmen—is usually very helpful to the viewer since it is direct and the answers are likely to be illuminating.

But in spite of efforts to control the questioning and answers by moderator David Schumacher, and despite the persistent questioning of the two newsmen on the panel, the rival senators for the most part took the bit in their teeth and spent much time ignoring the questions and answering statements made by each other.

United Increase Studied

JEFFERSON CITY — An increase of $2.9 million annually in gross revenues requested by the United Telephone Company of Missouri was suspended Friday for investigation and hearing by the Missouri Public Service Commission.

Overall the rates would apply to customers in 31 counties. Locally 22 area communities would come under the increase. They are: Calhoun, California, Clarksburg, Clinton, Cole Camp, Deepwater, Green Ridge, Holden, Ionia, Leeton, Lincoln, Malta Bend, Montrose, Ottumwa, Smithton, Sweet Springs, Syracuse, Tipton, Warrensburg, Warsaw and Windsor.

The proposed rates were suspended for 120 days beyond June 2, according to a commission spokesman. MPSC may suspend rates for an additional six months if necessary, the spokesman added.

United Telephone was directed to present its testimony and exhibits in support of the increase by July 7. Intervenor, the commission staff and other interested parties will be given a chance to present their evidence at a later date.

According to the commission parties wishing to intervene must file written applications with MPSC by June 27. Those who wish to testify, but are not interested in intervening, should contact MPSC counsel Jeremiah D. Finnegan, the commission spokesman said.

The proposed rates in this case would not apply to customer subsidiaries of United that presently have rate cases pending before the MPSC.

TOWSON, Md. (AP)—The women's liberation movement is spending too much time talking sex and marital contracts, the widow of Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. says.

Coretta King told graduates of Goucher College Sunday that the movement has become marred by "elitism" and lacks appeal for black working class women.

"They spend too much time talking about sex and marital contracts and not enough about tokenism of both black and white women and equal pay for equal work," she declared at commencement ceremonies for the women's liberal arts school.

Ron Jones

Jones New President Of Group

The Manufacturer's Association of Pettis County elected officers for 1972-73 at their monthly meeting last week at Holiday Inn.

Ron Jones, plant manager for Duke Manufacturing Co., was named president of the association. Selected vice-president was Ken Chastain, personnel director for Pittsburg-Corning, and Omer West, office manager of Hurlbut's Office Products Center, was named secretary-treasurer.

The meeting's program centered on a panel discussion on product quality control.

A special business session was then held and the board of directors decided to offer a program to recognize the "Employee of the Month" and the "Supervisor of the Month." Such recognition would be given persons who perform in an outstanding manner and who contribute most to the success of his or her company.

The group will present "Employee of the Year" and "Supervisor of the Year" awards at the annual Industrial Appreciation Banquet June 15 at Holiday Inn, it was announced. Each of the association's 30 members may nominate one candidate in each category.

Couple Is Killed In Highway Crash

TROY, Ill. (AP) — A Collinsville, Ill., couple was killed and six persons hospitalized with injuries in a near head-on collision on U.S. 40 east of here Sunday, state police said.

The dead were identified as Lucilee E. McGuire, 52, of Collinsville and her husband Arthur, 56, a passenger.

State police said the McGuire vehicle, westbound, ran off the pavement and went out of control in getting back on the highway before veering into the path of an eastbound car driven by Donald L. Graham, 32, of Attleboro, Mass.

McGuire, three members of his family and a Fairfield, Ill., couple riding in his car, Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Reeves, were taken to St. Joseph Hospital at nearby Highland.

America's Spacemen Seeking Other Employment

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The chill wind of dying hopes and vanished dreams whistles through the ranks of the astronaut corps. One by one, America's spacemen are seeking other jobs.

Of the 73 pilots and scientists selected as astronauts, 43 are left ready to fly. Twelve of this number are assigned to fly in either Apollo 17, the last moon mission, or Skylab, the series of three long-duration missions scheduled for next year.

Twenty astronauts have never flown and are not now selected for a planned mission. Their chances of flying after spending years in training, says one astronaut, are between "poor and nonexistent."

Eleven others have flown at least once, but are not now assigned to a mission.

Donald K. Slayton, chief of flight crew operations and one of the active astronauts who has never flown, knows his office is overstaffed and he is encouraging astronauts to seek other work.

Last week, two moon walkers, Edgar D. Mitchell of Apollo 14 and James B. Irwin of Apollo 15, announced their retirements effective later this summer.

Irwin said in an interview that both he and Mitchell were leaving earlier than planned to help Slayton with the over-strength problem.

Many of the spacemen, particularly those who never flew, are quietly making plans to leave.

The announcement last week of a joint rendezvous and docking mission with the Soviets pumped a particle of hope into the minds of some of the grounded spacemen. The mission, tentatively scheduled for 1975, will need two or three—it's undecided as yet—American astronauts.

Slayton said the crew for that mission probably will be selected early in 1974 and likely will come from the veterans of the Apollo and Skylab programs.

Eleven astronauts, hoping to get an important edge in the tough competition for the crew positions on the Soviet flight, are studying Russian or have firm plans to do so.

The crewmen for the Russian flight, however, says one spaceman, "are not going to be the more junior people in the office. The selection will be pretty much political."

Some of the spacemen who know they have no chance for the Russian flight are pulling for Slayton, the hard-luck guy of the astronaut corps, to get one of the jobs.

Slayton, one of the original seven American astronauts, is the only one who has never flown. A heart murmur that kept him on the ground has gone away and he was restored to flight status early this year.

Outside job offers for the astronauts, which came in cascades during the champagne hours of America's space party, have dwindled.

The men who have flown into space, said one astronaut, generally have no problem. For the others, he said, it'll be tougher.

Most who have quit the astronaut corps have found jobs that are far above average.

Other jobs are far from the spotlight.

Neil A. Armstrong, commander of Apollo 11 and the first man on the moon, is now a professor at the University of Cincinnati. Donn F. Eisele, command module pilot on Apollo 7, is training to become Peace Corps director in Thailand.

Two retired astronauts hold executive jobs with the space agency. They are James A. McDivitt of Apollo 9 and James A. Lovell Jr. of Apollo 8 and Apollo 13.

Apollo 8 astronaut William A. Anders is executive secretary of the National Aeronautics and Space Council. Michael Collins of Apollo 11 is director of the National Air and Space Museum at the Smithsonian Institution.

Most of the other former spacemen have gone into upper executive ranks of corporations or formed businesses of their own. The scientist-astronauts who have quit have gone back into research, and several have expressed bitterness over the years they wasted in the space agency waiting to fly.

The only space machine on the far horizon is the shuttle, the reusable spacecraft planned for the 1980s.

But that program, says Slayton, will require a very few astronauts.

"Most of the guys," he said, "will just have to find work outside of this business."

Independence Girl Named Miss Rodeo

KING CITY, Mo. (AP) — Debbie Ramsey of Independence is Miss Rodeo Missouri.

She was selected Saturday night at the pageant and rodeo here. Miss Ramsey, 19, will represent Missouri in November at the Miss Rodeo American Pageant at Las Vegas, Nev.

Linda Vandeventer, 19, of Kansas City, was first runner-up.
